

Sense and Sensibility

Volume II: Chapters I-IXV

Chapter 1

1. Why does Elinor believe Lucy's story? (183)

First of all, she cannot imagine why Lucy might have told such a falsehood with so much detail. What Lucy asserts, Elinor thinks is probable and proof. The opportunity for them to have met at Mr. Pratt's home is the foundation for the rest of the story.

2. What evidence does Lucy give Elinor? (183)

Edward's visit near Plymouth and his melancholy state of mind, his dissatisfaction at his own prospects, his uncertain behavior towards herself, the intimate knowledge of the Miss Steeles as to Norland and their family connections, the picture, the letter, the ring, form a body of evidence and establish the fact.

3. What does Elinor believe of Edward? (183)

She truly believes in Edward's affection to her sister. Her mother, her sister, and Fanny had all been aware of his regard for her at Norland; it is not possible off her own vanity. She is sure that his affection was all her own. She believes that he should have not remained at Norland after he felt her influence over him, but she feels that he has injured himself more than her.

4. What does Elinor think of Edward's present situation? (184)

She wonders if he could ever be tolerably happy with Lucy Steele. Even if he disregards his affection for her, she does not think that his integrity, his delicacy, and well-informed mind can be satisfied with a wife like Lucy—illiterate, artificial and selfish. She thinks that his youthful infatuation of nineteen had blinded him to everything but her beauty and good nature.

5. How does Elinor think Edward's mother will react to Lucy? (184)

Elinor is aware that if the opposition of his mother to marry her, the difficulties from his mother and sister had seemed great, how much greater was they more likely to be with Lucy who is inferior in connections, and probably inferior in fortune as herself.

6. Why does Elinor conceal this story from Fanny? Why? (184-185)

Elinor consoles herself that she has done nothing to merit her present unhappiness, and is comforted by the belief that Edward has done nothing to forfeit her esteem. She feels she can guard the truth from her mother and sister. Elinor, of course, has promised Lucy to keep the engagement a secret, but Elinor is relieved not to have to share this information. She does not want to aggravate her own distress. She also does not want to hurt their condemnation of Edward. She knows that their counsel can offer her no assistance and their scorn would add to her distress. She feels stronger alone and her own good sense as well supports her.

7. Why does Elinor want to renew her conversation with Lucy? (185)

Elinor wants to hear the particulars of Lucy and Edward's engagement, she wants to clearly understand Lucy's feelings for Edward, and she particularly wants to convince Lucy that she is not otherwise interested except as a friend.

8. Why does Elinor believe Lucy might be jealous of her? (185)

Elinor feels sure that Lucy might be jealous of her. Lucy has told her of Edward's regard for Elinor, and there was the joking off her jokes. Elinor is sure that Lucy confided in her in order to strike her close to Edward and to want Elinor away. Elinor intends to fight her affection toward Edward, to see him as little as possible, and to convince Lucy that her heart is unswayed.
