

Slavery In the United States

Web Quest

Objective:

- Identify and explain the challenges that slaves faced.
- Explain how the spiritual lives of slaves helped them manage their days.
- Explain how some slaves were able to escape slavery.

Introduction:

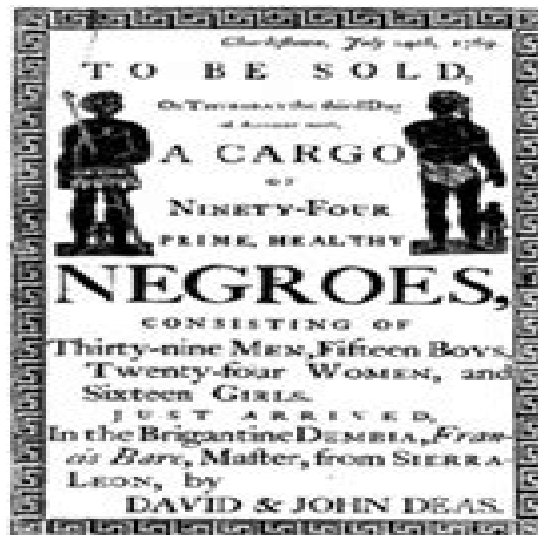

"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness."

These are the words of Thomas Jefferson in the Declaration of Independence, which announced our break up with the British Empire. As powerful as these words are today, they were not always true in our nation. For the slaves of America, equality was a long way off. The slaves were not equal at all, they were property. They were bought and sold by individuals who forced them to complete work under extreme conditions, and against their will.

While learning about the Southern part of our nation in the mid-1800s, have you ever wondered what life must have been like for the slaves? Would it have been easy for you to endure the never-ending hardships, and not be free to go wherever you chose?

Task: Use the facts and information found from the web quest to create a scrapbook depicting the different challenges that slaves faced. The scrapbook should illustrate your understanding by using information you learned while working through the process section.

Quest: Follow the directions and links for the following questions to learn about the challenges that slaves faced. After you have gathered all the information, create a scrapbook with pictures and captions that illustrate each topic.
