Treating Chronically Traumatized Children Arianne Struik, 2014-04-16. Professionals working with traumatized children are often asked whether it would be better to let sleeping dogs lie because the child may not be ready to discuss their experiences and out of fear that they may become further distressed or disturbed. In Treating Chronically Traumatized Children, Arianne Struik presents the case for waking those sleeping dogs in a safe and structured environment in order to allow the healing process to begin and prevent trauma later in life. Struik has developed a method for those cases labelled most difficult to treat involving deregulated traumatized children who refuse to talk about their memories or claim to have forgotten them completely. It incorporates factors in the child's environment and network to ensure that they are safe and secure before beginning the process and stable throughout treatment. Downloadable worksheets enhance the book's content and make each section straightforward to work through, supporting the child through the stabilization, processing, and integration phases of treatment. Illustrated throughout by case studies and comprehensive explanation of the theory and the treatment method, Treating Chronically Traumatized Children is clear and accessible and is ideal for psychologists, psychiatrists, psychotherapists, and counsellors as well as parents and anyone working with chronically traumatized children and adolescents.
