Introduction to Universal Access

Congratulations! You are now ready to begin using Space Explorers' innovative programs in your classroom. Universal program access is a subscription service designed to stimulate your students' interest in space and science. Your class can participate in a mission to space, perform International Space Station experiments, and explore the basics of our solar system from your classroom or computer lab. Universal access provides school-wide usage of all the pages on our website for every teacher on your campus, using their own unique usernames and passwords. One teacher on a Universal campus is designated as the administrator. This individual may sign up other teachers on their campus and receives this manual, e-mail notifications of special events and contests, and any additional purchased materials such as kits.

Space Explorers uses a three-tiered approach to delivering its curricula. As the first tier, the Learn section includes the lesson plans designed to prepare students for the mission(s) they will perform. The lessons utilize the Internet, hands-on activities, and worksheets to present students with the background information they will need to be successful explorers. Pre- and post-tests are also offered in this section.

Performing the experiment or mission is the next tier, the Explore section. This is one of the most engaging program components. As students begin their experiment or launch their rocket, the excitement they experience will motivate them to put their best efforts into the project.

The last tier involves conducting advanced research activities, the Analyze section. Students evaluate the data collected during the mission using the Data Laboratory and the Space Library® to make conclusions regarding future space exploration missions. All of this gives students an authentic experience that clearly demonstrates the wonder space exploration inspires.

The Universal subscription includes the following components:
