Ludwigsburg Germany Since then research has been going on and we can consider that the workshop was the successor of this first meeting Our goal was not to organize a workshop grouping only people producing software in the field of electricity education or more generally in the field of physics education even if this software was based on artificial intelligence techniques On the contrary we wanted this workshop to bring together researchers involved in the connection between cognitive science and the learning of a well defined domain such as electricity So during the workshop people doing research in physics education cognitive psychology and artificial intelligence had the opportunity to discuss and exchange These proceedings reflect the different points of view The main idea is that designing a learning environment needs the confrontation of different approaches The proceedings are organized in five parts which reflect these different aspects

Chemistry in Microelectronics Yannick Le Tiec, 2013-02-28 Microelectronics is a complex world where many sciences need to collaborate to create nano objects we need expertise in electronics microelectronics physics optics and mechanics also crossing into chemistry electrochemistry as well as biology biochemistry and medicine Chemistry is involved in many fields from materials chemicals gases liquids or salts the basics of reactions and equilibrium to the optimized cleaning of surfaces and selective etching of specific layers In addition over recent decades the size of the transistors has been drastically reduced while the functionality of circuits has increased This book consists of five chapters covering the chemicals and sequences used in processing from cleaning to etching the role and impact of their purity along with the materials used in Front End Of the Line which corresponds to the heart and performance of individual transistors then moving on to the Back End Of the Line which is related to the interconnection of all the transistors Finally the need for specific functionalization also requires key knowledge on surface treatments and chemical management to allow new applications

Communicating Climate Science - HC 254
Great Britain. Parliament. House of Commons. Select Committee on Science and Technology, Great Britain: Parliament:

House of Commons: Science and Technology Committee, Andrew Miller, 2014-04-02 The Government is failing to clearly and effectively communicate climate science to the public There is little evidence of co ordination amongst Government government agencies and public bodies on communicating climate science despite various policies at national and regional level to mitigate and adapt to climate change The mandate to act on climate can only be maintained if the electorate are convinced that the Government is acting on the basis of strong scientific evidence Ministers therefore need to do more to demonstrate that is the case and consistently reflect the Government approach in all their communications especially with the media The report also criticises the BBC for its reporting on the issue It points out that BBC News teams continue to make mistakes in their coverage of climate science by giving opinions and scientific fact the same weight The BBC is called to develop clear editorial guidelines for all commentators and presenters on the facts of climate that should be used to challenge statements from either side of the climate policy debate that stray too far from the scientific facts It is important that climate science is presented separately from any subsequent policy response Government should work with the learned societies and national academies to develop a source of information on climate science that is discrete from policy delivery comprehensible to the general public and responsive to both current developments and uncertainties in the science
