Handbook of Drug Abuse Prevention Zili Sloboda,William J. Bukoski,2007-08-06 There are a number of reasons why this book is important First there is no one source that summarizes what we know about the prevention of substance abuse from the research field so the book serves as a repository of accumulated knowledge on prevention theory intervention design and development and prevention research methodology Second as an evolving field prevention science has only begun to assert itself in both the arenas of practice and policy The formation of the Society for Prevention Research in 1991 was the first recognition that a science of prevention existed and required a separate forum to present the rapidly growing content of the field for dis cussion and review Finally there is a need to establish a baseline a reference point against which progress in the field of prevention science can be assessed This book serves all of these purposes The idea for this book grew from the observation in the early 1990s that after decades of attempts to develop effectiveinterventions to prevent drug use among children and adolescents in the United States that we were finally having success particularly in addressing the initiation of use These successes are the result of research that has provided a better understanding of the factors and processes associated with the onset of substance use bear the theoretical lenses developed and tested in the education research community These types of studies constitute the practice pull that we see as a necessary counterbalance to knowledge push in a more productive pedagogical innovation ecosystem based on research practitioner partnerships Second are studies empirically examining the implementations of evidence based designs in naturalistic settings and under naturalistic conditions Interestingly the teams conducting these studies are already exemplars of partnerships between researchers and practitioners who are uniquely positioned as in between straddling the two worlds As a result these publications represent both the rigours of research and the pragmatism of reflective practice In forthcoming editions we will add to this collection a third type of publication design profiles These will present practitioner developed pedagogical designs at varying levels of abstraction to be held to scrutiny amongst practitioners instructional designers and researchers alike We hope by bringing these types of studies together in an open access format that we may contribute to the development of new forms of practitioner researcher interactions that promote co design in pedagogical innovation
