Mathematical Modeling in Ecology C. Jeffries, 2012-12-06 Mathematical ecology is the application of mathematics to describe and understand ecosystems. There are two main approaches. One is to describe natural communities and induce statistical patterns or relationships which should generally occur. However, this book is devoted entirely to introducing the student to the second approach to study deterministic mathematical models and on the basis of mathematical results on the models to look for the same patterns or relationships in nature. This book is a compromise between three competing desiderata. It seeks to maximize the generality of the models, constrain the models to behave realistically that is to exhibit stability and other features, and minimize the difficulty of presentations of the models. The ultimate goal of the book is to introduce the reader to the general mathematical tools used in building realistic ecosystem models. Just such a model is presented in Chapter Nine. The book should also serve as a stepping stone both to advanced mathematical works like Stability of Biological Communities by Yu M Svirzhev and D O Logofet, Mir Moscow 1983 and to advanced modeling texts like Freshwater Ecosystems by M Straskraba and A H Gnauch, Elsevier Amsterdam 1985. Mathematics in Action Doug Brown, 1996 This is a comprehensive differentiated course suitable for students of all abilities. It is written specifically for standard grade through appropriate for other UK curricula. Chapters begin with looking back exercises for consolidation of the work. The fully differentiated contents have graded exercises. Review sections enable students to develop mathematical competence and confidence. There are photocopiable resources for general and credit students. The Search for the Tyler Y. Alphonse From the Investigative Files of Benoit Carter Gregory A. Pierson, 2017-08-15 In the late twenty fifth century a long dormant mystery resurfaces involving the disappearance in deep space of a Pulvermacher class supply freighter. Handed what appears to be another mundane research and report commission Junior Agent Benoit Carter is about to have his well ordered life profoundly change. Carter's initial search shows that his investigative section has been infiltrated by clandestine alien moles. Then a retired Confederation senior agent is murdered, an entire Del Mar subdivision is destroyed and Carter is gravely injured in an assassination attempt. After recuperating Carter and his supervisor Debra T Stanton follow a string of seemingly unconnected clues, eventually stumbling on some long buried information. They learn how Terra the Earth was involved in a far distant interstellar conflict, its cause and the fact that their home world has been quietly invaded by enemy aliens whose offspring have infiltrated vital levels of the Confederation's governance. Another disclosure during their hunt for clues is the identity of a close associate who has been putting up a well crafted facade. Carter remains doggedly on the case following a trail of digital bread crumbs to uncover the cause of the mysterious disappearance of the Confederation fast supply vessel the Tyler Y Alphonse. This is the third book in an exciting trilogy. Peak District Treasure Hunts Ian Almond, 2004 If you like a walk with a difference why not pit your wits against Ian Almond's challenging treasure hunts within the Peak District National Park.
