Endless articles championing the spirit of genuine cinephilia have proclaimed the death of classical cinema and mourned the end of an era while new currents in media studies introduced such buzzwords into the discussions as remediation, Bolter and Grusin media convergence, Jenkins post-media aesthetics, Manovich or the virtual life of film, Rodowick. By the turn of the millennium the whole ecosystem of media had been radically altered through processes of hybridization and media convergence. Some theorists

even claim that now that the term medium has triumphed in the discussions around contemporary art and culture the actual media have already deceased as digitized imagery absorbs all media Moving images have entered the art galleries and new forms of inter art relationships have been forged They have also moved into the streets and our everyday life as a domesticated medium at everybody's reach into new private and public environments and into a fusion of both via the Internet Consequently should we speak of an all pervasive cinematic experience instead of a cinematic medium What really happens to film once its traditional medium has shape shifted into various digital forms and once its traditional locations institutions and usages have been uprooted What do these re locations and re configurations really entail What are the most important new genres in post media moving pictures Is it the web video is it 3D cinema is it the computer game that operates with moving image narratives is it the new vernacular database the DVD or the good old television adjusted to all these new forms How does theatrical cinema itself adapt to or reflect on these new image forms and technologies How can we interpret the convergence of older cinematic forms with an emerging digital aesthetics traceable in typical post media hosts of moving images These are only some of the major questions that the theoretical investigation and in depth analyses in this volume try to answer in an attempt at exploring not the disappearance of cinema but the blooming post media life of film
