Asymmetrical Neighbors Enze Han,2019 Is the process of state building a unilateral national venture or is it something more collaborative taking place in the interstices between adjoining countries To answer this question Asymmetrical Neighbors takes a comparative look at the state building process along China Myanmar and Thailand's common borderland area It shows that the variations in state building among these neighboring countries are the result of an interactive process that occurs across national boundaries Departing from existing approaches that look at such processes from the angle of singular bounded territorial states the book argues that a more fruitful method is to examine how state and nation building in one country can influence and be influenced by the same processes across borders It argues that the success or failure of one country's state building is a process that extends beyond domestic factors such as war preparation political institutions and geographic and demographic variables Rather it shows that we should conceptualize state building as an interactive process heavily influenced by a neighborhood effect Furthermore the book moves beyond the academic boundaries that divide arbitrarily China studies and Southeast Asian studies by providing an analysis that ties the state and nation building processes in China with those of Southeast Asia

Changing Media, Homes and Households Deborah Chambers,2016-04-14 Media technologies have played a central role in shaping ideas about home life over the last two centuries Changing Media Homes and Households explores the complex relationship between home householders families and media technologies by charting the evolution of the media rich home from the early twentieth century to the present Moving beyond a narrow focus on media texts production and audiences Deborah Chambers investigates the physical presence of media objects in the home and their symbolic importance for home life The book identifies the role of home based media in altering relationships between home leisure work and the outside world in the context of entertainment communication and work It assesses whether domestic media are transforming or reinforcing traditional identities and relations of gender generation class and migrancy Mediatization theory is employed to assess the domestication of media and media saturation of home life in the context of wider global changes The author also develops the concept of media imaginaries to explain the role of public discourses in shaping changing meanings values and uses of domestic media Framed within these approaches four chapters also provide in depth case studies of the processes involved in media's home adoption early television design family centred video gaming the domestication of tablet computers and the shift from smart homes to today's connected homes This is an ideal text for students and researchers interested in media and cultural studies communication and sociology significance for China domestically and for Beijing's engagement with the wider world. While presenting contending explanatory approaches, contributors advance arguments to further critical discussion on selected topics. Main issues analysed include political change, military transformation, legal reforms, economic development, energy security, environmental degradation, food security and safety, demographic trends, migration and urbanization, labour unrest, health and education, social inequalities, ethnic conflicts, Hong Kong's integration, cross Strait relations. Given its thorough and up to date assessment of major political, social and economic challenges facing China, this fully revised and substantially expanded new edition is an essential read for any student of Chinese Studies.

FREEDOM Joss Sheldon, 2024-02-29

WE ALL DESERVE TO BE FREE Once upon a time we were free to go wherever we chose. It wasn't so long ago. The history of humanity is a tale of constant motion. People are supposed to move about. We have imaginations which encourage us to dream about life in other places, bodies which are built to roam, and hands which can make an array of vehicles. A few of us even possess the Wanderlust Gene which encourages us to take risks to sail across uncharted oceans and launch ourselves towards faraway planets. Some of us are forced to relocate. Lots of us choose to migrate. A few of us belong to nomadic communities. But if one thing is clear, it's that mobility improves our societies. Emigrants send back billions in remittances helping to reduce poverty and inspiring their peers to upskill. Immigrants do the work that their hosts are unwilling or unable to perform. They sustain economies which have ageing populations. They establish industries, invent products, create jobs, increase wages, fuel growth, pay taxes, and enrich our cultures, enhancing our music, arts, sports, languages, and cuisine. It's time to celebrate movement. It's time to demand our freedom. It's time for open borders. This book explains why, making the historical, scientific, economic, cultural, political, and philosophical cases for free movement.

The Routledge Research Companion to Geographies of Sex and Sexualities Gavin Brown, Kath Browne, 2016-05-20 Comprehensive and authoritative this state of the art review both charts and develops the rich sub discipline geographies of sexualities exploring sex gender sexuality and sexual practices Emerging from the desire to examine differences and exclusions as a key aspect of human geographies these geographies have engaged with heterosexual and queer lesbian gay bi and trans lives Developing thinking in this area geographers and other social scientists have illustrated the centrality of place space and other spatial relationships in reconstituting sexual practices representations desires as well as sexed bodies and lives This book reviews the current state of the field and offers new insights from authors located on five continents In doing so the book seeks to draw on and influence core debates in this field as well as disrupt the Anglo American hegemony in studies of sexualities sexes and geographies This volume is the definitive collection in the area bringing together many international leaders in the field alongside scholars that are well established outside the Anglophone academy and many emerging talents who will lead the field in the decades to come Management Geography Atsushi Taira, Rolf D. Schlunze, 2022-09-26 Management geography explores the spatial characteristics of management related issues especially of firms This book discusses management geography in Japan and other Asian countries from Asian perspectives The field has made significant contributions to the global economy but has not been deeply investigated in English language geographical literature to date. The book addresses the following critical questions: What kinds of challenges do multinational corporations in Japan and other Asian countries face? How are managerial actors in multinational enterprises (MNEs) embracing boundary spanning activities in a global context? How do firms and related entities cultivate business pipelines and buzz within and beyond local regions? How do actors in Japanese MNEs, small and medium sized enterprises (SMEs) and related institutions embed various managerial processes at overseas locations? This book consists of two parts. Part I discusses the application and roles of Japanese and international managerial practices in the globalizing world. Part II examines changing business communities in the industrial and rural spaces of East Asia, focusing primarily on Japan and China. This work will interest readers in a wide range of fields including geography, management studies, economics, urban planning and sociology. The book is also suitable for upper level undergraduate students and graduate students in geography, management studies and related fields.

Gastronomy and Urban Space Andrzej Kowalczyk, Marta Derek, 2020-01-20. This book focuses on the relationship between gastronomy and urban space. It highlights the intrinsic role of eating establishments and the gastronomy industry for cities by assessing their huge impacts on urban changes and discussing some of the challenges posed by new developments. Written by authors with a background in geography, it starts by discussing theoretical aspects of studies on gastronomy in urban space to place the subject in the broader context of urban geography. Covering both changes and challenges in gastronomy in urban space, it presents a wide range of problems which are described and analysed using various case studies from Europe and other parts of the world.

Flood recession agriculture for food security in Northern Ghana Sidibe, Yoro, Williams, Timothy O., Kolavalli, Shashidhara, 2016-02-26. This review describes a range of physical and socio-economic scientific methods and field activities that will be implemented in a proposed research project to develop a better understanding of the extent and patterns of flooding and the potential of flood recession agriculture. These activities will allow the hydrological characteristics of the river to be matched to crop/livestock systems of flood recession agriculture that are well suited to the study communities and their organizational and institutional frameworks in order to support sustainable growth of such systems. This detailed study will provide recommendations on the technical, economic, institutional and policy measures needed to achieve sustainable intensification of flood recession agriculture in northern Ghana while complementing efforts undertaken to promote other types of water management systems. Options for out-scaling of flood recession agriculture beyond the study area to other suitable areas will also be explored. The expectation is that the proposed project will improve food security by enhancing knowledge on effective flood recession practices, enhance rural incomes through expanded dry season farming with new opportunities for rural employment and improve adaptation to climate change by building more resilient farming communities. To achieve these expected outcomes, proactive policies that clearly identify flood recession agriculture as an alternative farming practice and provide institutional mandates to irrigation support services to promote it through training demonstration and outreach programs will be equally valuable Emotional States Eleanor Jupp, Jessica Pykett, Fiona M. Smith, 2016-10-14 What is the political allure value and currency of emotions within contemporary cultures of governance What does it mean to govern more humanely Since the emergence of an emotional turn in human geography over the last decade the notion that our emotions matter in understanding an array of social practices spatial formations and aspects of everyday life is no longer seen as controversial This book brings recent developments in emotional geography into dialogue with social policy concerns and contemporary issues of governance It sets the intellectual scene for research into the geographical dimensions of the emotionalized states of the citizen policy maker and public service worker and highlights new research on the emotional forms of governance which now characterise public life An international range of empirical field studies are used to examine issues of regulation modification governance and potential manipulation of emotional affects professional and personal identities and political technologies Contributors provide analysis of the role of emotional entanglements in policy strategy policy implementation service delivery citizenship and participation as well as considering the emotional nature of the research process itself It will be of interest to researchers and students within social policy human geography politics and related disciplines The West Virginia School Journal
