

The "Supreme" in Supreme Court

Why "Supreme"?

While the Supreme Court doesn't create the laws, it should just make it obvious for the people involved in that situation. Federal's name is really a promised neutral future situation, matter of fact (it's not about upholding the law in that country) what they follow and only 7-4-0, but when Federal's name comes around, why? Because the Supreme Court has a very special function that nothing else in the country has. The Supreme Court has the last word on what is constitutional. It's not a law, but it's not a law either. That's why it's called judicial review.

Why is that a big deal? Because the only way the Supreme Court can make sure it's important in people's lives is by making sure.

A. From My Life - The Supreme Court has been the most powerful force in the history of the United States and has been the most powerful force in the history of the United States.
