MODULE CODE: MLC5149

LESSON: 2A GREETINGS

LECTURER: DR. KHOALENYANE

1. INTRODUCTION

Welcome to the beginning of an incredible and interesting journey of learning your way around Sesotho! Sesotho is one of the easiest languages among other African languages. Knowing even a bit of Sesotho can be a valuable tool for you as a teacher, to be able to communicate with different tribes as you begin your service as a teacher who might be working in one of the provinces where Sesotho is considered a major language. Free State province for example, is predominantly dominated with Sesotho speaking people, on the other hand Gauteng also has a huge portion of Sesotho speaking community, hence, you should be able to communicate with them. It will help you to be culturally sensitive, to get work done, to get around, to make friends, and, above all, it is your window into this wonderful culture of the Basotho.

In this chapter, you will get your feet on the ground learning the most crucial element of the Sesotho language, learning how to greet people, and to navigate your way through the everyday life.

2. GREETINGS

Greetings vary from the formal to the informal (slang) greeting, it depends on who you are greeting, how close or friendly do you know that person and the respect you have for that individual.

Unlike the English greeting that has different usage for different times like good morning, good day, good afternoon, and good evening, it is not usually the case with the Sesotho greeting. Most of the time in Sesotho, the greeting is the same. In Southern Sesotho we use "Lu" instead of "Du" like the Northern Sesotho,
