Total Propaganda Alex S. Edelstein, 2013-11-05 Total Propaganda moves the study of propaganda out of the exclusive realm of world politics into the more inclusive study of popular culture, media, and politics. All the participatory functioning elements of the society are aspects of membership in the popular culture. Thus the values of popular music, media, politics, debates over social issues, and even international trade become everyday propaganda to which everyone may relate. To emphasize the necessity for new thinking about propaganda, Edelstein creates the concepts of the new propaganda and the old, and he devises a language of unonyms to convey their meanings more quickly. Oldprop is characteristic of mass cultures and utilizes totalitarian methods of conflict, hegemony, minimization, demonization, and exclusiveness to achieve its goals. By contrast, newprop is created by members of the popular culture to allow them to engage in accommodation, enhance the individual, and promote inclusiveness. Shifts in the old and the new propaganda are tracked across social issues such as race, religion, sexuality, gender, gun control, and the environment, as well as in fashion, politics, advertising, sports, media, and politics. Central to the concept of total propaganda is that it is not simply additive; it is the product of new energies that are produced by the fusing of propaganda in such related forums as music, art, advertising, sports, and politics. It is these synergies and their production of new energies that make total propaganda greater than the sum of its parts. Edelstein concludes that the most important distinction that should be drawn between mass culture and popular culture is its text, i.e., its propaganda. In a popular culture, everyone creates and consumes propaganda; in a mass culture, almost everyone consumes it, but only a few create it. This formulation offers new ways to discuss power and ideology in media texts. As an example, where once the least informed and the least educated were the most subject to propaganda, now the most informed and most educated often are the first to create propaganda and the first to consume it.

Race, Rights, and Recognition Dean Franco, 2012-06-15 In Race Rights and Recognition Dean J Franco explores the work of recent Jewish American writers many of whom have taken unpopular stances on social issues distancing themselves from the politics and public practice of multiculturalism While these writers explore the same themes of group based rights and recognition that preoccupy Latino African American and Native American writers they are generally suspicious of group identities and are more likely to adopt postmodern distancing techniques than to presume to speak for their people Ranging from Philip Roth's scandalous 1969 novel Portnoy's Complaint to Gary Shteyngart's Absurdistan in 2006 the literature Franco examines in this book is at once critical of and deeply invested in the problems of race and the rise of multicultural philosophies and policies in America Franco argues that from the formative years of multiculturalism 1965 1975 Jewish writers probed the ethics and not just the politics of civil rights and cultural recognition this perspective arose from a stance of keen awareness of the limits and possibilities of consensus based civil and human rights Contemporary Jewish writers are now responding to global problems of cultural conflict and pluralism and thinking through the challenges and responsibilities of cosmopolitanism Indeed if the United States is now correctly if cautiously identifying itself as a post ethnic nation it may be said that Jewish writing has been well ahead of the curve in imagining what a post ethnic future might look like and in critiquing the social conventions of race and ethnicity
