Complete Unit Guide Packet

Overview

The classical period of Asian history stretches from about 300-1300 C.E. and encompasses all of modern Asia and most of the Middle East.

During this era the Dynastic Cycle in China saw the rise and fall of the Qin, Han, Tang, and Song Dynasties. Buddhism spread across the region, especially along the Silk Road that connected China, Africa, and Europe.

Buddhism reached India during the Mauryan Empire and its emperor Ashoka ruled by its edicts. This empire eventually gave way to the Gupta Empire which was a golden age for India.

This era also marked significant religious and ideological developments such as Hinduism, Daoism, and Confucianism. In Japan, Shinto and Buddhism coexisted as religious traditions in the culture.

Genghis Khan was the founder and first Great Khan of the Mongol Empire. Mongol armies invaded Russia, Southwest Asia, and China. The Mongols converted to local religions, such as Islam, after conquest and lived a nomadic lifestyle.

Genghis Khan's grandson Kublai founded the Yuan dynasty of China in 1271, which ruled over present-day China, Mongolia, Korea. The Mongol Empire at its peak became the largest contiguous empire in world history.
