

Initial Psychology Assessment Report – Instructions

The Initial Psychological Assessment Report (IPAR) asks for information necessary to make an acceptance decision on a claim. WorkSafeNB must determine if the worker's injury or illness meets requirements for acceptance under the Workers' Compensation Act. In addition, if the claim is accepted under the Act, this report helps us set the worker up for recovery success, offering a baseline for improvement. WorkSafeNB employs psychology consultants with specialized experience in worker recovery and WorkSafeNB services. If you have any questions on treatment, return-to-work options, medications, and/or programs we offer and support, we encourage you to reach out. Email psychology@worksafe-nb.ca.

Respond within 10 business days of the appointment. Use your MyWorkSafe account to submit quickly and securely.

Worker and Provider sections

Provide all requested information. If you do not have a WorkSafeNB provider number or don't know it, please call us toll-free at 1-800-999-9775.

Employer section

In addition to employment information, describe the employer's description of the injury/incident. You can find this information in the Report of Accident or Occupational Disease – Form 57, which you would have received with the referral. The employer's description may differ from the worker's account. Please provide any notable discrepancies in the "Comments" section. If you did not receive the Report of Accident or Occupational Disease – Form 57, please call us at 1-800-999-9775.

Clinical report

Describe the worker's reaction at the time of the incident. Indicate, in your opinion, if the incident meets the DSM-5 criterion for a traumatic event (examples: exposure to actual or threatened death, serious injury or sexual violence)?

If there is a delayed onset of symptoms, indicate the date of the initial exposure. This may be a single event or repeated exposure. If it's a repeated exposure, please provide the approximate dates that the exposure occurred and the factors that triggered the current claim. It's important for WorkSafeNB to understand what triggered the present claim after considerable time has passed since an initial exposure. Describe the development of the condition since the initial exposure.

Identify and describe the current presenting psychological symptoms. Describe in detail the nature of the identified symptom(s). For example, instead of reporting "cognitive issues", describe the nature and severity (examples: "worker reports mild difficulty with memory and concentration" or "worker reports frequent nightmares regarding the workplace assault.")

Indicate any barriers or potential barriers to treatment and return to work. WorkSafeNB may be able to offer support. For example, we may ask an occupational therapist or claim manager to help with employee-employer relations or other concerns related to workplace.

Please provide a list of current medications – both prescribed and unprescribed. Indicate dosages if possible. This will help us understand the efficacy of the medication and possible opportunity for support. We may, for example, provide psychiatric/medical consultation for medication optimization.

Identify if there is a pre-existing history of mental health difficulties. If so, please describe and provide an opinion on the extent it may be contributing to or have contributed to the onset and maintenance of symptoms. A pre-existing mental health condition may complicate recovery; it does not necessarily affect entitlement to benefits.

Please report psychometric test findings. Though specific tests may differ across psychologists, WorkSafeNB requires a general measure of personality functioning with self-report validity indicators (examples: NEOI, NEO, PAI, MCMI), measures of anxiety and depression (examples: BAI, BDI-II, PHQ-9), and a measure of trauma-related
