

WARNING SYSTEM

Various devices are available to alert you to danger. These include fire, smoke, gasoline fumes, and carbon monoxide detectors. If your boat has a galley, it should have a smoke detector. Where possible, use wired detectors. Household batteries often corrode rapidly on a boat.

You can't see, smell, nor taste carbon monoxide gas, but it is lethal. As little as one part in 10,000 parts of air can bring on a headache. The symptoms of carbon monoxide poisoning—headaches, dizziness, and nausea—are like sea sickness. By the time you realize what is happening to you, it may be too late to take action. If you have enclosed living spaces on your boat, protect yourself with a detector. There are many ways in which carbon monoxide can enter your boat.

PERSONAL FLotation DEVICES

Personal Flotation Devices (PFDs) are commonly called life preservers or life jackets. You can get them in a variety of types and sizes. They vary with their intended uses. To be acceptable, they must be Coast Guard approved.

Type I PFDs

A Type I life jacket is also called an offshore life jacket. Type I life jackets will turn most unconscious people face down to a vertical or slightly backward position. The adult size gives a minimum of 22 pounds of buoyancy. The child size has at least 11 pounds. Type I jackets provide more protection to their wearers than any other type of life jacket. Type I life jackets are bulkier and less comfortable than other types. Furthermore, there are only two sizes, one for children and one for adults.

Type I life jackets will keep their wearers afloat for extended periods in rough water. They are recommended for offshore cruising where a delayed rescue is probable.

Type II PFDs*• See Figure 7

A Type II life jacket is also called a near-shore buoyant vest. It is an approved, wearable device. Type II life jackets will turn some unconscious people from face down to vertical or slightly backward positions. The adult size gives at least 15.5 pounds of buoyancy. The medium child size has a minimum of 11 pounds. And the small child and infant sizes give seven pounds. A Type II life jacket is more comfortable than a Type I but it does not have as much buoyancy. It is not recommended for long hours in rough water. Because of this, Type II's are recommended for lessons and inland cruising on calm water. Use them where there is a good chance of fast rescue.

Fig. 7 Type II approved flotation devices are recommended for lessons and inland cruising on calm water. Use them where there is a good chance of fast rescue.

Type III PFDs

Type III life jackets or marine buoyant devices are also known as flotation aids. Like Type II's, they are designed for calm inland or close offshore water where there is a good chance of fast rescue. Their minimum buoyancy is 15.5 pounds. They will not turn their wearers face up.

Type III devices are usually worn where freedom of movement is necessary. Thus, they are used for water skiing, small boat sailing, and fishing among other activities. They are available as vests and flotation coats. Flotation coats are useful in cold weather. Type III's come in many sizes from small child through large adult.

Life jackets come in a variety of colors and patterns—red, blue, green, camouflage, and cartoon characters. From a sunny standpoint, the best color is bright orange. It is easier to see in the water, especially if the water is rough.

Type IV PFDs*• See Figures 8 and 9

Type IV ring life buoys, buoyant cushions and noninflated buoys are Coast Guard approved devices called throwables. They are made to be thrown to people in the water, and should not be worn. Type IV cushions are often used as

Fig. 8 Type IV buoyant cushions are made to be thrown to people in the water. If you can squeeze air out of the cushion, it is faulty and should be replaced.

Fig. 9 Type IV throwables, such as this ring life buoy, are not designed as personal flotation devices for unconscious people, non-swimmers, or children.
