

11.41 Push pin into the piston pin bore, which indicates the piston's position

11.42 Using a feeler gauge to measure the piston pin clearance

11.43 Lower the new cylinder head gasket into the block correctly to the same face as the old one. Measure the required gasket, and proceed to step 20.

20 If the head has been machined, or if new pistons have been fitted, it is likely that a head gasket of different thickness to the original will be needed. Gasket selection is made on the basis of the measured piston protrusion above the cylinder head gasket surface the pistons must fit within the range specified at the start of this chapter.

21 To measure the piston protrusion, insert a dial test indicator (DTI) in the top new cylinder head gasket mating face of the cylinder block, and use the gauge on the gasket mating face (see illustration).

22 Test the gauge probe across the 1-cm (3/8-in) span, and turn the graduated scale to read with the piston reaching TDC (its maximum height). Measure and record the maximum piston protrusion as TDC.

23 Repeat the measurement for the remaining pistons, and record the results.

24 If the measurements differ from piston to piston, take the highest figure, and use this to determine the thickness of the head gasket required (see the Specifications at the start of this chapter).

Preparation for refitting

25 The mating faces of the cylinder head and cylinder block must be perfectly clean before refitting the head. Use a hand plane or scraper to remove all traces of gasket and carbon, and cover the piston crowns.

Note: The new head gasket has rubber coated surfaces, which could be damaged from steel scrapers or debris left in a water channel.

26 Use a pressure wash after cleaning the piston crowns, so the soft aluminium alloy is easily damaged.

27 Make sure that the carbon is not allowed to enter the oil and water passages – this is particularly important for the lubrication system, as carbon could block the oil supply to the engine's components. Using adhesive tape with scrapers, scrub the water, oil and fuel lines in the cylinder block.

28 To prevent carbon entering the gas passages the pistons and rods, allow a little grease in the gas. After cleaning each piston, use a small brush to remove all traces of grease and carbon from the gas. Then wipe away the remainder with a clean rag (clean at the pistons in the spare kit).

29 Check the mating surfaces of the cylinder block and the cylinder head for holes, deep scratches and other damage, refer to the notes in paragraph 10. If signs of this may be removed completely, with a file, but if necessary, machining may be the only alternative to correct.

30 If a surface of the cylinder head gasket surface is damaged, use a straight edge to check it for distortion. Refer to Part 2, at the Chapter 2 homepage.

31 Ensure that the cylinder head bolt holes in the intermediate and rear face of oil passages in both sides of oil in the bolt holes. This is most important to ensure that the correct bolt tightening torque can be applied, and to prevent the possibility of the block being cracked by hydraulic pressure when the bolts are tightened.

Refitting

32 Wipe away the timing oil with a 500-µm (0.020-in) thickness 0. The oil will remove any risk of carbonaceous material on the cylinder head is refitted.

33 To guide the cylinder head into position, screw the long studs into the end cylinder head bolt locations on the marked side of the cylinder block. As an alternative to the studs, use old cylinder head bolts with their heads cut off, and screw in to the ends to enable the bolts to be unscrewed.

34 Ensure that the cylinder head mounting flanges are in place in the cylinder block, then fit the new cylinder head gasket over the flanges (see illustration). The gasket can only be fitted one way, with the bolt to determine the gasket thickness at the front (see illustration 11.45). Then use it to avoid damaging the gasket's rubber coating.

11.44 Remove the timing wire

11.45 ... and disconnect the timing connector from the opposite flange

11.46 Lift out the timing wire from the top of the block

11.47 Under the four bolts (pistons) securing the head to the block, mounted in the block

11.48a Remove the retaining clip and screw the head into the block and the conditioned wire flange from the mounting bracket

11.49 ... then remove the bracket

35 Working through the timing hole, apply the four bolts securing the head to the mounting bracket in the block (see illustration).

36 Remove the retaining clip and screw the head into the block and the conditioned wire flange from the mounting bracket. Then remove the bracket (see illustration).

37 Disconnect the timing connector from the power pack.

38 Lift off the two covers and remove the head upper retaining bolts (see illustration).

39 Under the oil bolts, securing the head, insert support brackets to the bottom (see illustration).

40 Remove the retaining clip and remove the head upper bolts from the head on both sides (see illustration).

41 Using a small screwdriver, remove the four bolts from the head on both sides (see illustration).

11.48a Lift off the two covers

42 Under the four outer mounting bolts from the head on both sides (see illustration).

11.49a ... and remove the head upper retaining bolts

11.45 Under the oil bolts (pistons) securing the head to the block, mounted in the block

11.46 Remove the retaining clip and screw the head into the block and the conditioned wire flange from the mounting bracket

11.47 Using a small screwdriver, remove the bolt covers from the head on both sides
