

CONCLUSION

CONCEPT: The concept of a function is a central idea in mathematics. It is a relationship between two sets of objects, where each object in the first set is related to exactly one object in the second set. This relationship is called a function. The first set is called the domain, and the second set is called the codomain. The function is denoted by f , and the image of an object x in the domain under the function f is denoted by $f(x)$.
