Blackburn: Top 200 Players

Figure 1 illustrates the proposed framework for the proposed system. The system is designed to be a self-supervised learning framework for the detection of anomalies in the network traffic. The system is composed of a data collection module, a feature extraction module, and a classification module. The data collection module collects network traffic data from various sources. The feature extraction module extracts features from the collected data. The classification module classifies the extracted features into normal and anomalous categories. The system is trained using a self-supervised learning framework, where the model is trained to reconstruct the input data. The reconstruction error is used as a measure of anomaly detection. The system is evaluated using a dataset of network traffic data, and the results show that the proposed system achieves a high detection rate for anomalies in the network traffic.
