The Politics of the Dead in Zimbabwe, 2000-2020 Joost Fontein, 2022 Innovative and challenging study that provides fresh insights on the anthropology of death and postcolonial politics In 1898 just before she was hanged for rebelling against colonial rule Charwe Nyakasikana spirit medium of the legendary ancestor Ambuya Nehanda famously prophesised that my bones will rise again A century later bones bodies and human remains have come to occupy an increasingly complex place in Zimbabwe's postcolonial milieu From ancestral bones rising again in the struggle for independence and later land to resurfacing bones of unsettled wardead and from the troubling decaying remains of post independence gukurahundi massacres to the leaky tortured bodies of recent election violence human materials are intertwined in postcolonial politics in ways that go far beyond yet necessarily implicate contests over memory commemoration and the representation of the past In this book Joost Fontein examines the complexities of human remains in Zimbabwe's politics of the dead Challenging and innovative he takes us beyond current scholarship on memory commemoration and the changing significance of traditional death practices to examine the political implications of human remains as material substances as duplicitous rumours and as returning spirits Linking the indeterminacy of human substances to the productive but precarious uncertainties of rumours and spirits the book points to how the incompleteness of death is politically productive and ultimately derives from the problematic entangled excessivities of human material and immaterial existence and is deeply intertwined with the stylistics of postcolonial power and politics Joost Fontein is Professor of Anthropology University of Johannesburg He was previously Director of the British Institute in Eastern Africa and Lecturer in Social Anthropology at the University of Edinburgh His books include Remaking Mutirikwi Landscape Water and Belonging James Currey 2015 shortlisted for the African Studies Association 2016 Herskovits Prize Southern Africa South Africa Namibia Lesotho Swaziland and Botswana University of Johannesburg Press

Titles Without Merit Francis Machingura, Munyaradzi Mawere, 2024-05-29 This book examines the controversial issues surrounding the desire for titles both earned and unearned in Zimbabwe and beyond The desire for titles is often associated with the quest for status power class and recognition Unfortunately this desire has resulted in faking and the problem of distinguishing genuine PhDs from fake ones The unscrupulous quest for fake degrees is referred to in this book as Titlemania or Taitolomania The scramble for titles has not spared community leaders across the divide Of concern is the failure of higher education students to use their earned titles to contribute to the search for solutions to societal problems through national technological development The perspectives of the contributors in this volume provoke debates on the value of doctorates in Africa and Zimbabwe in particular considering that most PhD holders are not using their degrees to contribute to national development production of goods and services and the improvement of societal conditions

Though Greco Roman antiquity classics has often been considered the handmaid of colonialism its various forms have nonetheless endured through many of the continent s decolonising transitions Southern Africa is no exception This book canvasses the variety of forms classics has taken in Zimbabwe Mozambique and especially South Africa and even the dynamics of transformation itself How does u Mzantsi classics of southern Africa look in an era of profound change whether violent or otherwise What are its future prospects Contributors focus on pedagogies historical consciousness the creative arts and popular culture The volume in its overall shape responds to the idea of dialogue in both the Greek form associated with Plato s rendition of Socrates wisdom and in the African concept of ubuntu Here are dialogues between scholars both emerging and established as well as students some of whom were directly impacted by the Fallist protests of the late 20 teens Rather than offering an apologia for classics these dialogues engage with pressing questions of relevance identity change the canon and the dynamics of decolonisation and potential recolonisation The goal is to interrogate classics the ways it has been taught studied perceived transformed and even lived from many points of view Athlete Transitions into Retirement

Deborah Agnew, 2021-08-12 Transitions in sport can be either normative relatively predictable or non normative less predictable and are critical times in the development of athlete s careers Whilst retirement from sport is inevitable the timing of retirement can be less predictable If an athlete copes well with the transition they may be better able to adjust to life after sport However not coping with the transition can lead to a crisis and negative consequences for the athlete Transition periods from sport and in particular retirement from sport have been identified as high risk periods for athletes in terms of psychological distress However circumstances surrounding the athlete s retirement are a critical factor in the transition into life after sport Voluntarily retiring from sport for example leads to a smoother transition than being forced into retirement through injury or deselection Research indicates that retirement from sport should be seen as a process rather than a single moment with many athletes taking up to 2 years to successfully transition out of sport Currently there are few bodies of work that are solely devoted to retirement transition Athlete Transitions into Retirement Experiences in Elite Sport and Options for Effective Support provides contemporary viewpoints on athlete transitions from elite sport in a global context This volume is a collaboration of research from leading authors around the world offering global perspectives to athlete transitions into retirement and is key reading for both researchers and practitioners in the fields of Sport Psychology and Coaching as well as the Athletes themselves Negotiating Religion and Development Arnhild

Leer-Helgesen,2019-06-19 This book argues that relationships between religion and development in faith based development work are constructed through repeated processes of negotiation Rather than being a neat and tidy relationship faith based development work is complex and multifaceted an ongoing series of negotiations between theological interpretations and theories of human development between identities as professional practitioners and as believers between different religious traditions at local regional and international levels and between institutional structures and individual agency In particular the book draws on a deep ethnographic study of Christian faith based development work in the Bolivian Andes The case study highlights the importance of seeing theological interpretations as being firmly embedded in local religious and cultural systems involved in a constant process of identity construction Overall the book argues that religion should not be seen as homogeneous or either good or bad for development instead we must recognise that institutional faith based identities are constructed in many ways formal theological and interpersonal and any tensions between religious and development goals must be worked through in an ongoing recognition of that complexity This book will be of interest to researchers working in development studies and religious studies as well as to practitioners and policymakers with an interest in faith based development work Birth controlled Amrita Pande,2022-06-14 Birth controlled analyses the world of selective reproduction the politics of who gets to legitimately reproduce the future through a cross cultural analysis of three modes of controlling birth contraception reproductive violence and repro genetic technologies It argues that as fertility rates decline worldwide the fervour to control fertility and fertile bodies does not dissipate what evolves is the preferred mode of control Although new technologies like those that assist conception or allow genetic selection may appear to be an antithesis of other violent versions of population control this book demonstrates that both are part of the same continuum All population control policies target and vilify women Black women in particular and coerce them into subjecting their bodies to state and medical surveillance Birth controlled argues that assisted reproductive technologies and repro genetic technologies employ a similar and stratified burden of blame and responsibility based on gender race class and caste To empirically and historically ground the analysis the book includes contributions from two postcolonial nations South Africa and India examining interactions between the history of colonialism and the economics of neoliberal markets and their influence on the technologies and politics of selective reproduction The book provides a critical interdisciplinary and cutting edge dialogue around the interconnected issues that shape reproductive politics in an ostensibly post population control era The contributions draw on a breadth of disciplines ranging from gender studies sociology medical anthropology politics and science and technology studies to theology public health and epidemiology facilitating an interdisciplinary dialogue around the interconnected modes of controlling birth and practices of neo eugenics

The Routledge Handbook of Translation and the City Tong King Lee, 2021-06-27 The Routledge Handbook of Translation and the City is the first multifaceted and cross disciplinary overview of how cities can be read through the lens of translation and how translation studies can be enriched by an understanding of the complex dynamics of the city. Divided into four sections, the chapters are authored by leading scholars in translation studies, sociolinguistics and literary and cultural criticism. They cover contexts from Brussels to Singapore and Melbourne to Cairo and topics from translation as resistance to translanguaging and urban design. This volume explores the role of translation at critical junctures of a city's historical transformation as well as in the mundane intercultural moments of urban life and uncovers the trope of the translational city in writing. This Handbook is critical reading for researchers, scholars and advanced students in translation studies, linguistics and urban studies.
