Chapter 3 – Controls, Instruments and Operation

Inside door handle

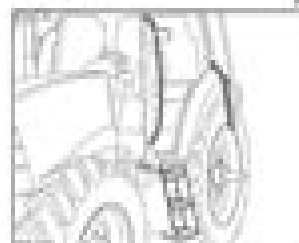

To open the cab door from inside, push up the lever (1) on the underside of the handle (2). Use the handle to push the door open.

Entering and leaving the cab

Whenever possible, the cab should always be entered from the left-hand side.

WARNING! When entering the cab from the right-hand side, do not touch the shift lever. Only use the handles provided on the floor and door.

To enter the cab, step up to the door and open it. Place one foot on the raised step, grab the handles on the W bar and inside of the door, climb up the steps and enter the cab.

On steps to the driver's seat, grip the door by the step (1) if fixed, and pull it towards you to move it away from the door.

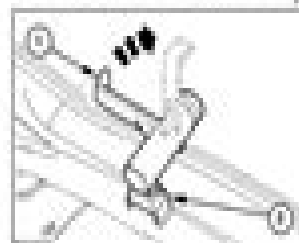

To leave the cab, take off the seatbelt, open the door, lean on to the handles and climb backwards out of the cab, using the handle to push down.

Rear window

The rear window can be locked in its closed position or in a partially or fully closed position.

To open the window, locate the window latch (1) in a vertical position. Open the window slightly. Then press down the handle so that the locking latch snaps into the slot (2) on the frame. Alternatively, you can also swing the window all the way open using two gas-operated compression springs.

WARNING! Never lean in the window when opening it. Do not allow it to swing open unattended.
