Introduction

This is a Personal Leadership Action Plan (PLAP) based on the self-assessment results on the Leadership Practices Inventory (LPI) defined by Kouzes and Posner in The Leadership Challenge. The task focuses on two critical areas with relatively low scores, which include Inspire a Shared Vision and Challenge the Process.

As a future leader, I should be able to Inspire a Shared Vision among my team members. Naturally, I have imagined myself leading an exhilarating, hardworking team with a bright future in a successful organization. This reflects my vision for possibility and abilities to lead successfully in the future. Successful leaders should Inspire a Shared Vision in their teams through portraying possibilities in the future. However, after my LPI results, I have noted that there are fundamental areas for improvements in this element of exemplary leadership.

Main body

As a potential leader, I need to develop skills and abilities to look into the future, envision endless possibilities, and inspire others to share my vision. In this context, I must demonstrate that I can make a real change, show that the future will be better than today, transform group thinking, and develop new opportunities and possibilities for my constituents.

I have noted that unless I inspire others, my vision will only be limited to myself and not my team. This is deficient for a focused leadership that seeks to create a significant impact on others. I have to make my constituents to understand and incorporate my vision so that they can follow. My constituents can only be inspired by my vision and make their personal commitment, and this would eventually result in an acceptable vision for the team.

My fundamental approach to Inspire a Shared Vision involves getting to know my team members and learn to relate with them effectively. Many people usually believe
