

CAPSTONE PROJECT FINAL REPORT

1. Introduction

The aim of this capstone project is to create a tutoring assistant which will prove to be effective in helping discrete math students to practice permutation and combination exercises. For the assistant to provide the needed guidance to a student who is struggling, it is needed to take into consideration both mathematical problem that will be solved, as well as the solution that is proposed by the learner.

This tutoring assistant will use a problem generator designed to test the knowledge of the student. This generator is created by another student, Ahmed Fangli, for his capstone project. Fangli's problem generator offers my program with a complete set of exercises prepared into text files, together with a metadata that shows their structure, taking into consideration the agreed on mathematical model which is used commonly in both our projects. My system makes good use of a natural language processing technique in order to parse generated files and further extract the structure of the problems.

2. Steeple Analysis

This highly intelligent assistant for discrete math tutoring is actually a prototype which can be later on developed into a more advanced and widely accessible system which helps students in better understanding and practicing various mathematical concepts that they study in a similar manner in order to work with a human tutor. The software may even be extended to other Math fields, such as Probabilities, Calculus, Chemistry and Physics, etc.

The primarily societal impact of this tutoring assistant is to provide support to one of the 14 Grand Challenges of Engineering. This is defined by the National Engineering Academy, particularly personalized learning. This type of learning is a growing field of interest, especially in about higher education that talk past one another the authors of this book show how to move beyond these and other obstacles to improve the student learning experience and further successful college outcomes Offering an alternative to the culture of compliance in assessment and accreditation they propose a different approach which they call the Learning System Paradigm Building on the shift in focus from teaching to learning the new paradigm encourages faculty and staff to systematically seek out information on how well students are learning and how well various areas of the institution are supporting the student experience and to use that information to create more coherent and explicit learning experiences for students The authors begin by surveying the crowded terrain of reform in higher education and proceed from there to explore the emergence of this alternative paradigm that brings all these efforts together in a coherent way The Learning System Paradigm presented in chapter two includes four key elements consensus alignment student centeredness and communication Chapter three focuses upon developing an encompassing notion of alignment that enables faculty staff and administrators to reshape institutional practice in ways that promote synergistic integrative learning Chapters four and five turn to practice exploring the application of the paradigm to the work of curriculum mapping and assignment design Chapter six focuses upon barriers to the work and presents ways to start and options for moving around barriers and the final chapter explores ongoing implications of the new paradigm offering strategies for communicating the impact of alignment on student learning The book draws upon two recent initiatives in the United States the Tuning process adapted from a European approach to breaking down siloes in the European Union educational space and the Degree Qualifications Profile DQP a document that identifies and describes core areas of learning that are common to institutions in the US Many of the examples are drawn from site visit reports self reported activities workshops and project experience collected by the National Institute for Learning Outcomes Assessment NILOA between 2010 and 2016 In that six year window NILOA witnessed the use of Tuning and or the DQP in hundreds of institutions across the nation
