March and May 1871 the Parisian Communards fought for a revolutionary alternative to the status quo grounded in a vision of internationalism radical democracy and economic justice for the working masses that cut across national borders The eventual defeat and bloody suppression of the Commune resonated far beyond Paris In Britain the Commune provoked widespread and fierce condemnation while its defenders constituted a small but vocal minority The Commune evoked long standing fears about the continental spectre of revolution not least because the Communards seizure of power represented an embryonic alternative to the bourgeois social order This book examines how a heterogeneous group of authors in Britain responded to the Commune In doing so it provides the first full length critical study of the reception and representation of the Commune in Britain during the closing decades of the nineteenth century showing how discussions of the Commune functioned as a screen to project hope and fear serving as a warning for some and an example to others Writers considered in the book include John Ruskin Edward Bulwer Lytton Eliza Lynn Linton Mary Elizabeth Braddon Anne Thackeray Ritchie

Margaret Oliphant George Gissing Henry James William Morris Alfred Austin and H G Wells As the book shows many but not all of these writers responded to the Commune with literary strategies that sought to stabilize bourgeois subjectivity in the wake of the traumatic shock of a revolutionary event The book extends critical understanding of the Commune s cultural afterlives and explores the relationship between literature and revolution The Poems of Thomas D'Arcy McGee Thomas D'Arcy McGee,Mrs. J.
