Religion in Roman Egypt David Frankfurter, 1998 This exploration of cultural resilience examines the complex fate of classical Egyptian religion during the centuries from the period when Christianity first made its appearance in Egypt to when it became the region's dominant religion roughly 100 to 600 C E Taking into account the full range of witnesses to continuing native piety from papyri and saints' lives to archaeology and terracotta figurines and drawing on anthropological studies of folk religion David Frankfurter argues that the religion of Pharaonic Egypt did not die out as early as has been supposed but was instead relegated from political centers to village and home where it continued a vigorous existence for centuries In analyzing the fate of the Egyptian oracle and of the priesthoods the function of magical texts and the dynamics of domestic cults Frankfurter describes how an ancient culture maintained itself while also being transformed through influences such as Hellenism Roman government and Christian dominance Recognizing the special characteristics of Egypt which differentiated it from the other Mediterranean cultures that were undergoing simultaneous social and political changes he departs from the traditional decline of paganism triumph of Christianity model most often used to describe the Roman period By revealing late

Sacred Prostitution in the Ancient Greek World. From Aphrodite to Baubo to Cassandra and Beyond. Morris Silver, 2020-01-01 This book does not intend to demonstrate that Greeks and other ancient Mediterranean peoples men and women married and unmarried sought and participated in sex for its own sake That is it is taken as obvious a given that they were able to separate sex for pleasure from sex for reproduction There never were human beings who concerned themselves only with fertility Neither does this study seek to demonstrate that some ancient Greeks were willing to provide sexual services to partners in return for the receipt of nonsexual benefits Again this is self evident Nor does this study intend to show that the ancient Mediterranean world was familiar with individuals and enterprises that regularly earned incomes by selling sexual services Clearly the ancient world knew prostitution as an occupation and as a form of enterprise In an article published by Ugarit Forschungen in 2008 Silver 2006a challenged the view that temple sacred prostitution did not exist in the ancient Near East Contrary to such scholars as Julia Assante 1998 2003 Martha T Roth 2006 and Vinciane Pirenne Delforge 2010 ample evidence indicates that it did For the convenience of readers this article is included as a Supplement to the present volume The original article has been reformatted to correct some typographical errors and to make it blend seamlessly into the present volume but otherwise it is unchanged More recent materials from the ancient Near East are considered mostly in footnotes however The present study seeks to leap beyond this finding by showing that temple prostitution also flourished in the ancient Mediterranean That it did is of course an old view but the old supporting arguments often lack rigor and even clarity and the supporting evidence is fragmentary contradictory and often facially absurd e g Herodotus 1 199 1 5 Work of this kind has been discredited by scholars such as Fay Glinister 2000 and Stephanie Lynn Budin 2008
