Neoliberalization, Universities and the Public Intellectual Heather Fraser, Nik Taylor, 2016-05-05 This book employs an intersectional feminist approach to highlight how research and teaching agendas are being skewed by commercialized corporatized and commodified values and assumptions implicit in the neoliberalization of the academy The authors combine 50 years of academic experience and focus on species gender and class as they document the hazardous consequences of seeing people as instruments and knowledge as a form of capital Personal political examples are provided to illustrate some of the challenges but also opportunities facing activist scholars trying to resist neoliberalism Heartfelt frank and unashamedly emotional the book is a rallying cry for academics to defend their role as public intellectuals to work together with communities including those most negatively affected by neoliberalism and the corporatization of knowledge

Digesting Femininities Natalie Jovanovski, 2017-07-18 This volume addresses how the rhetoric of feminist empowerment has been combined with mainstream representations of food thus creating a cultural consciousness around food and eating that is unmistakably pathological Throughout Natalie Jovanovski discusses key texts written by women for women best selling diet books popular cookbooks produced by female food celebrities and iconic feminist self help texts This is the first book to engage in a feminist analysis of body policing food trends that focus specifically on the use of feminist rhetoric as a harmful aspect of food culture There is a smorgasbord of seemingly diverse gender roles for women to choose from but many encourage breaking gender norms and embracing a love of food while perpetuating old narratives of guilt and restraint Digesting Femininities problematizes the gendering of food and eating and challenges the reader to imagine what a genderless and emancipatory food culture would look like

21st-Century Narratives of Maternal Ambivalence Rachel Williamson, 2023-09-15 Motherhood has long been depicted in reductive or limited terms At once valorized and configured as the ultimate end goal for socially condoned femininity maternity is also highly mediated and scrutinized This has resulted in a representational tradition that persists in imagining maternal subjects in rigid binary terms pitting good mothers against bad Largely in response to this repressive schema recent years have marked the emergence of a diverse range of visual and literary texts about motherhood While such texts vary in style genre and form this book argues that they are unified in their efforts to publicize embodied maternal experience and foreground maternal ambivalence a concept that is best understood as a mother's capacity to simultaneously love and hate her child Although maternal ambivalence has become an increasingly popular topic of study with maternal scholars its articulation within contemporary representations and narratives has yet to be adequately theorized and addressed and this book aims to fill this gap
