When you first open a program in Office 2007 you will see immediately that it looks very different. The File, Edit, etc. menus have been replaced with the Quick Access toolbar, the Office Ribbon and the Office Button. The Office Ribbon is divided into tabs. Each tab is divided into groups.

Some of the buttons on the tabs have small arrows that indicate that clicking on the button will produce a drop down list.

Many of the group sections on the tab have an arrow in the bottom right corner. Clicking on this arrow will launch a dialogue box with more options. Many of the dialogue boxes that are launched will be familiar from Office 2003.

Each of the programs in Office 2007 has a customizable Quick Access Toolbar at the top. Add the tools that you use most often to this toolbar by clicking on the "More" button (the arrow at the end of the toolbar.) At the top left corner of the screen you will see a round button called the Office Button. This has replaced the "File" menu from the previous versions of Office. You will find "Save As," the "Print" menu that will allow you to print to a different printer other than the default printer, as well as other tasks. It is important that you know how to "Save As" because by default Office 2007 saves documents as "docx" files and so on. Only a person with Office 2007 or
