Abstract The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week, low-intensity, low-impact, and low-volume exercise program on the physical fitness and health-related quality of life of older adults. The study was a randomized controlled trial involving 40 participants aged 65 and older. The intervention group performed a 12-week exercise program, while the control group remained sedentary. Physical fitness was measured using a 6-minute walk test, and health-related quality of life was assessed using the SF-36 questionnaire. The results showed that the intervention group had significantly higher scores on the 6-minute walk test and the SF-36 questionnaire compared to the control group. The findings suggest that a 12-week, low-intensity, low-impact, and low-volume exercise program can improve physical fitness and health-related quality of life in older adults.

testing and fixing we will call it cost 1 and the cost of finding and eliminating causes of faults call it cost 2 Both costs in some way are included in the overall cost of the product If we try to eliminate cost 1 cost 2 goes up and vice versa An economic system of production will minimize the overall cost of the product Economics of Electronic Design Manufacture and Test is a collection of research contributions derived from the Second Workshop on Economics of Design Manufacture and Test written for inclusion in this book
