

Circular Functions

Introduction:

In this chapter, we look at the algebra and geometry of the trigonometric functions $\sin(x)$, $\cos(x)$ and $\tan(x)$.

These functions are usually referred to as Trigonometric Functions. The function the unit circle function refers to the fact that they are derived from the unit circle. The Unit Circle is a circle that has a radius of one.

We will look at the Unit Circle, however, it is recommended to understand complex numbers.

We will then proceed to geometry, then calculus and finally the trigonometric functions. We start with the unit circle and then move on to the unit circle and then to the unit circle. We will then proceed to geometry, then calculus and finally the trigonometric functions. We start with the unit circle and then move on to the unit circle and then to the unit circle.

Transformations Tim Brown,2014-01 This unit is designed to familiarize students with the ideas of how various functions can be transformed and the effect those transformations have on equations graphs and contextual situations The function families were chosen to be simple enough for students to readily understand and also sophisticated enough to clearly demonstrate the effects of dilations and translations The skills and principles to be learned apply to virtually all function families and will give a solid foundation for more advanced studies in functions The approach of this unit is primarily investigative in nature students will examine the effects various transformations have on function equations and graphs to develop conjectures and generalized understanding To that end the Geometry Expressions Gx software will be used extensively as an investigative tool and a means to check the accuracy of conjectures Ideally students will have previously completed the Intro to Unit Circle Trigonometry lesson using Gx as that introduces the general learning pattern as well as many of the software features they will be using If they haven t used Gx before it is a good lesson to do as a review prior to starting this unit
