What Was I Thinking? Jo M. Russell, 2016-07-20 What Was I thinking Such a simple question But with such a complicated answer We were two teenagers playing at being grown up Sure we had unprotected sex Not that we couldn t afford a condom We just believed it couldn t happen to us not the first time anyway We got away with it the first time or so we thought so we kept on stretching our luck until it snapped back at us We convinced our parents to let us get married How I m not sure Neither of us worked or even wanted to work We were teenagers and teenagers are supposed to have fun right We lived in five different places and were on our sixth when the baby was born I was ten weeks pregnant when we got married It wasn t the failure to pay rent that got us thrown out each time It was the noise We argued from the time we got up until we went to bed at night We believed in and practiced the old wives tale of don't go to bed angry At one place we lived the police spent more time at our house than at their assigned precinct We finally got our act together and settled into family life But we were entitled to have some fun After all the year was 1970
