

My Experience in Transformational Leadership - Essay Example Essay

In the work environment especially when I was a military commandant, I managed to transform the military structure into that which shows a high level of dynamism. I expressed both transformational and laissez-faire type of leadership to manage the senior and junior employees. In the military, we had various departments and departmental heads that are responsible for monitoring and maintenance of various activities within and without the camp. Therefore, the delegation of duties in relation to areas of specialization became paramount in all departments so as to achieve teamwork and proper coordination among the military officers. Also, I believed in giving less guidance to the subordinates and tried to achieve the set objectives and control activities with less obvious means. Besides, I believed that people can work well when they had been left alone to respond to their tasks and responsibilities in their best way possible. Given that the military has its guidance, rules and regulations which are given unto the army officers during training, I was giving the officers freedom to make decisions, other leaders to provide tools and the necessary resources which are needed to meet the organizational set objectives. Also, as more of the powers to make decisions were given to the followers, yet as a leader, I was responsible for the teams' decision and actions and made a decision which ensures that the entire military camp remains, speak one voice and operate in one accord. It thus shows that other officers knew what they are supposed to do but a little guidance is given unto them when they seem to be losing trajectory. However, there were some challenges which were arising as I deploy the Laissez Faire type of leadership to administer the operations of the National Military. They include other leaders having a perception that I was not involved in the operations which others especially the followers were doing as per the freedom of decision making was concerned. At times, the roles were not properly designed, and I used to blame members of the team for not achieving the set objectives. However, given that in the military people work as a team, my leadership proved to be successful, and I had achieved the set goals of the employees as a commandant. For example, I successfully led the National War against the Iraq terrorist Saddam Hussein and managed to accomplish the rescue missions against the abductions and piracy in both sea and air.

However, after the experience got in the military and the drawbacks which I did experience before, I decided to find more about leadership and how I can improve it so as to use the past solve the present and future problems. Through research and conversations, I had with other leaders; I can affirm that I had had a growth and a change in perceptions of leadership. Growth in leadership had enabled me to adopt the transformational type of leadership. These came after I had retired from the military and join the public sector. I was employed as the Minister of Internal Defense and Industry. It forced me to abandon the YES SIR slogan in the military since it couldn't work in the corporate world where different ideologies and propositions are put in place before indulging in the decision-making process. By adopting the transformational leadership style, I managed to experience performance beyond expectations. The main motivation behind the performance was strong indulgence in the creation of inspiring visions for the future of the nation, motivating the employees to buy into achieving the set goals, objectives and visions, managing the delivery of the visions and building a stronger trust based relationship with other people. It thus enabled the organization to build the model of integrity and fairness, every department to set clear goals and objectives facilitate effective service delivery to the public. In addition, it is a policy that made the employees decision-

Teaching Tourism Edelheim, Johan,Joppe, Marion,Flaherty, Joan,2022-02-22 Tourism as an activity is increasingly being criticised for its exploitative and extractive industrial approaches to business Yet it has the power to transform and to regenerate societies cultures and the environment The desire to explore the world around us is deeply embedded in many people s psyche but it comes at a cost to the environment and often to the residents of the visited communities Much of tourism education has been closely linked to preparing students for future professional practice but the challenges and opportunities linked to its consumption require that its future leaders must exhibit very different values and understandings to tackle ever more complex and wicked problems from which tourism cannot dissociate itself This compilation of values based learning experiences can be adapted to suit the needs and disposition of individual instructors and aims not only to engage students in the subject matter but also deepen their understanding of its complexity and interconnectivity and help them become global citizens that lead lives of consequence
