Pedroli, 2011-10-05 Wageningen University and Research Centre is known for its practical and societally relevant research in spatial development. Stakeholders currently put much emphasis on participatory processes in landscape planning procedures. This poses a special challenge for research. What role does research play in our present world characterised by complexity, competing claims and development needs and an increased concern for climate change and environmental impact? In the book Knowledge in Action we explore different types of transdisciplinary research that scientists engage in. Depending on the societal context and the interests of local citizens, researchers apply different research approaches to optimally incorporate the various points of view in their research and promote processes enhancing dialogue and shared results. In the book, authors present their research experiences, their theoretical inspiration, the research methodology applied to consult, share and collaborate with societal actors in order to create options for change. The book includes several striking examples from The Netherlands, both successful and less effective, and also innovative examples from communities in Africa and Asia. The authors reflect on opportunities, problems and dilemmas they had to deal with. They especially address how far the role and theoretical perspectives of collaborative researchers can lead them in action research. Can they limit themselves to joint knowledge production and learning processes or should they engage in strategic positioning, advocacy and entrepreneurship to make it happen? The book discusses the issues that researchers should consider when they position their research activities within ongoing developments at landscape level. Read the book and judge for yourself. Test Policy in Defense Bernard R. Gifford, Linda C. Wing, 2012-12-06 Bernard R. Gifford and Linda C. Wing. Standardized testing has become a ubiquitous feature of American life. As a major source of information for reducing uncertainty in the allocation of merit-based educational training and employment opportunities, testing affects the life chances of individuals. Moreover, testing influences the way in which our society judges itself and provides for our collective future. Test scores may determine a child's admission to kindergarten and promotion to the first grade. Most states award the high school diploma only if a student has passed a minimum competency test. Major institutions of higher education typically require applicants to supplement their records of academic achievement with scores on college admissions tests. In the labor market as a condition of employment or assignment to training programs more and more employers are requiring workers to sit for personnel selection tests Additionally it has become commonplace to use test scores to calibrate our national sociopolitical condition and our capacity to compete with other countries in the global economy In short with increasing frequency and intensity scores on examinations that purport to be objective and precise measures of individual knowledge abilities and potential are playing a critical role in the opportunity marketplace Similarly test scores are exercising growing influence in assessments of our social and economic institutions and in policy decisions about the relative investments that should be made in each In all these instantiations test scores are at the center of high stakes decision making about the future of individuals and of the nation itself
