

Problem 1.2 Is each of these 2-D signals:

- Analog or digital?
- Continuous-space or discrete-space?

- (a) Image in a telescope eyepiece
- (b) Image displayed on digital TV
- (c) Image stored in a digital camera

Solution:

(a) The image seen in a telescope is Analog and continuous space.

(b) The image displayed on a digital TV is discrete space, since it is composed of pixels, but each pixel takes a continuous range of values.

So a digital TV image at a given moment is Analog and discrete space.

(c) The image stored in a digital camera consists of pixels (discrete space) which are quantized to a finite number of values. Digital and discrete space.
