Lesson 7.1 The National Judiciary

Key Terms

Article III of the U.S. Constitution vests the judicial power in the federal judiciary. This includes the Supreme Court and the lower federal courts. The judiciary is the branch of government responsible for interpreting the law and ensuring that the government operates within the bounds of the Constitution.

Supreme Court Justices are the highest-ranking judges in the federal judiciary. They are appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate. The Supreme Court has the final say on all federal appeals and has the power to declare laws and executive actions unconstitutional.

Lower Federal Courts include the U.S. District Courts and the U.S. Courts of Appeals. These courts handle most federal cases, including criminal, civil, and administrative matters.

State Courts are the primary courts in each state. They handle most state-level cases, including criminal, civil, and family law matters.

Local Courts are the lowest level of the judiciary. They handle cases at the city or county level, including criminal, civil, and family law matters.

Judicial Review is the power of the courts to declare laws and executive actions unconstitutional.

Marbury v. Madison is a landmark Supreme Court case that established the principle of judicial review.

Ex parte McCard is a Supreme Court case that established the principle of habeas corpus.

Ex parte Millard is a Supreme Court case that established the principle of habeas corpus.

Judicial Review

Definition: The power of the courts to declare laws and executive actions unconstitutional.
