English a Changing Medium for Education Constant Leung, Brian V. Street, 2012-07-25 In this volume a range of authors from different international contexts argue that the notion of communicative competence in English hitherto largely referenced to metropolitan native speaker norms has to be expanded to take account of diverse contexts of use for a variety of purposes It also discusses the popular belief that language and literacy should simply be regarded as a technical skill which confers universal benefits and that it should be replaced with a social practice view that recognises situated variations and diversity This volume we believe provides a reference point for extended research and practice in these areas that will be of interest to wide range of people engaged in language and literacy education      The Condition of Education , 2002 Includes a section called Program and plans which describes the Center s activities for the current fiscal year and the projected activities for the succeeding fiscal year      The Future of the Curriculum Ben Williamson, 2013-03-08 An examination of curriculum innovations that are shaped by new ideas about digital media and learning Although ideas about digital media and learning have become an important area for educational research little attention has been given to the practical and conceptual implications for the school curriculum In this book Ben Williamson examines a series of contemporary curriculum innovations in the United States Great Britain and Australia that reflect the social and technological changes of the digital age Arguing that the curriculum is always both forward and rearward looking Williamson considers how each of these innovations represents a certain way of understanding the past while also promoting a particular vision of the future The curriculum initiatives are all examples of what Williamson calls centrifugal schooling expressing a vision of education and learning that is decentered distributed and dispersed emphasizing networks and connections In centrifugal schooling a curriculum is actively assembled and improvised from a heterogeneous mix of people groups coalitions and institutional structures Participants in curriculum design and planning include local governments corporations foundations charities and nongovernmental organizations Among the curriculum innovations Williamson examines are High

Tech High a charter school network in San Diego that integrates technical and academic education Opening Minds a competence based curriculum used in 200 British secondary schools and Quest to Learn a school for digital kids in New York City with a sister school in Chicago He also describes two major partnerships the Partnership for 21st Century Skills which advocates for 21st century readiness for American students and the Whole Education Alliance in Britain a network of third sector educational organizations

Globalizing Education Policy Fazal Rizvi,Bob Lingard,2009-12-04 Rizvi and Lingard s account of the global politics of education is thoughtful complex and compelling It is the first really comprehensive discussion and analysis of global trends in education policy their effects structural and individual and resistance to them In the enormous body of writing on globalisation this book stands out and will become a basic text in education policy courses around the world Stephen J Ball Karl Mannheim Professor of Sociology of Education Institute of Education University of London UK In what ways have the processes of globalization reshaped the educational policy terrain How might we analyse education policies located within this new terrain which is at once local national regional and global In Globalizing Education Policy the authors explore the key global drivers of policy change in education and suggest that these do not operate in the same way in all nation states They examine the transformative effects of globalization on the discursive terrain within which educational policies are developed and enacted arguing that this terrain is increasingly informed by a range of neo liberal precepts which have fundamentally changed the ways in which we think about educational governance They also suggest that whilst in some countries these precepts are resisted to some extent they have nonetheless become hegemonic and provide an overview of some critical issues in educational policy to which this hegemonic view of globalization has given rise including devolution and decentralization new forms of governance the balance between public and private funding of education access and equity and the education of girls curriculum particularly with respect to the teaching of English language and technology pedagogies and high stakes testing and the global trade in education These issues are explored within the context of major shifts in global processes and ideological discourses currently being experienced and negotiated by all countries The book also provides an approach to education policy analysis in an age of globalization and will be of interest to those studying globalization and education policy across the social sciences

Culture Wars Ira Shor,1992-09 This lively and controversial work critiques the conservative efforts in the 1970s and 1980s to undo the educational reforms of the 1960s to reestablish control over the curriculum and to change the nature of the debate and the goals of education An outstanding work of educational theory and history John Coatsworth University of Chicago
