

Circular Functions

Introduction:

In this session we look at the algebra and geometry of the trigonometric functions $\sin(x)$, $\cos(x)$ and $\tan(x)$.

These three functions are usually referred to as Trigonometric Functions. The function the Unit Circle function refers to the fact that they are derived from the Unit Circle. The Unit Circle is a circle that has a radius of one.

We will look back at the Unit Circle towards the end of the session to see how it is used to define the trigonometric functions.

We will also go on to look at the trigonometric functions and how they are used in the context of the unit circle. We will also look at the trigonometric functions and how they are used in the context of the unit circle. Transformations Tim Brown,2014-01 This unit is designed to familiarize students with the ideas of how various functions can be transformed and the effect those transformations have on equations graphs and contextual situations The function families were chosen to be simple enough for students to readily understand and also sophisticated enough to clearly demonstrate the effects of dilations and translations The skills and principles to be learned apply to virtually all function families and will give a solid foundation for more advanced studies in functions The approach of this unit is primarily investigative in nature students will examine the effects various transformations have on function equations and graphs to develop conjectures and generalized understanding To that end the Geometry Expressions Gx software will be used extensively as an investigative tool and a means to check the accuracy of conjectures Ideally students will have previously completed the Intro to Unit Circle Trigonometry lesson using Gx as that introduces the general learning pattern as well as many of the software features they will be using If they haven t used Gx before it is a good lesson to do as a review prior to starting this unit
