Fulton, Brenda L. Lyon, Kelly A. Goudreau, 2010 Print CourseSmart International Marketing P. K. Vasudeva, 2006 With the onset of globalisation International Marketing has become an important subject among students pursuing MBA in International Marketing and International Trade as also among professionals who study and undertake research projects in the areas such as Foreign Direct Investment Free Trade Area World Trade Organisation UNCTAD and the like The third edition focuses on global economy and its transmission to India The global economic condition is perhaps at its best since the World War II mainly because of the upward trend in international relations and aggressive bilateral multi lateral as well as regional treaties concerning trade and economy among various countries throughout the globe An updated table of contents reflects the latest research findings and practices up to the year 2005 The latest edition offers new chapters on Competitive Analysis Competitive Strategies Technical Environment Globalisation International Retail Management and the World Trade Organisation WTO covering right up to Hong Kong Ministerial 2005 Additionally some assorted current topics such as Performance of Foreign Trade Policy 2004 09 Export Taxes Composition of Trade Direction of Trade Foreign Direct Investment External Commercial Borrowings Non residential Deposits and Exchange Rate Movements have been given due place in the book Each chapter concludes with a summary a list of questions and case studies for ready reference The bibliography is exhaustive including Internet references for further studies A must read book for MBA International Marketing and International Trade students and researchers Pride and Prejudice, Practices and Perceptions Sharla Chittick, 2011 Due to escalating carbon based emissions anthropogenic climate change is wreaking havoc on the natural and built environment as higher near surface temperatures cause arctic ice melt rising sea levels and unpredictable turbulent weather patterns The effects are especially devastating to inhabitants living in the water worlds of developing countries where environmental pressure only exacerbates their vulnerability to oppressive economic policies As climatic and economic pressures escalate threats to local resources living space safety and security are all reaching a tipping point Climate refugees may survive but they will fall victim to displacement economic insecurity and socio cultural destruction With the current economic system in peril it is now a matter of urgency that the global community determine ways to modify their behaviour in order to minimize the impact of climate change This interdisciplinary comparative analysis contributes to the dialogue by turning to environmental history for similar scenarios with contrasting outcomes It isolates two North Atlantic water worlds and their inhabitants at an historical juncture when the combination of climatic and economic pressures threatened their survival During the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries the Hebrideans in the Scottish Insular G idhealtachd and the Wabanaki in Ketakamigwa were both responding to the harsh conditions of the Little Ice Age While modifying their resource management settlement patterns and subsistence behaviours to accommodate climate change they were simultaneously targeted by foreign opportunists whose practices and perceptions inevitably induced oppressive economic pressure This critical period in their history serves as the centre of a pendulum that swings back to deglaciation and then forward again to the eighteenth century to examine the relationship between climate change and human behaviour in the North Atlantic It will be demonstrated that both favourable and deteriorating climate conditions determine resource availability but how humans manage those resources during feast or famine can determine their collective vulnerability to predators when the climate changes It is argued that historically climate has determined levels of human development and survival on either side of the North Atlantic regardless of sustainable practices However when cultural groups were under extreme environmental and economic pressure there were additional factors that determined their fate First the condition of their native environment and prospect for continuing to inhabit it was partially determined by the level of sustainable practices And secondly the way in which they perceived and treated one another partially determined their endurance If they avoided internal stratification and self protectionism by prioritising the needs of the group over that of the individual they minimised fragmentation avoided displacement and maintained their social and culture cohesion
