Televangelism and American Culture Quentin J. Schultze, 2003-09-15 Not just another trashing of televangelism Schultze's sensitive critique of present patterns of religious programming is meant to promote a more responsible Christian use of the television medium His book deserves to be read by all who care deeply about the obedient proclamation of the gospel in contemporary culture Richard Mouw The problems Schultze addresses are more profound than sexual or financial scandals They are rather problems of idolatry substituting a charismatic image on the screen of God heresy defining the faith by what it will do for me and ecclesiastical suicide transforming churches into audiences Amazingly after such an indictment Schultze holds out hope for the Christian use of television Mark Noll The most intelligent report on televangelism that I have read and I suspect the best ever Clearly the work of a smart student a discerning watcher and fair critic of the media but best of all a careful Christian mind Lewis Smedes Schultze's concluding chapter should be required reading for every Christian It provides solid biblical guidelines for calling religious broadcasters to accountability challenges individual Christians as well as the Christian media to be more critical and selective in their support of religious broadcasters and calls Christian educators to address the implications of living in the television age Steve Rabey Christianity Today A disturbing book useful both for the author's cultural and Christian critique and for his citation of a wide range of evidence Lloyd Averill The Christian Century Competition in Television Production Act United States. Congress. Senate. Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation. Subcommittee on Communications, 1984 Docufictions Gary D. Rhodes, John Parris Springer, 2005-11-22 Through most of the 20th century the distinction between the fictional narrative film and the documentary was vigorously maintained The documentary tradition developed side by side with but in the shadow of the more commercially successful feature film In the latter part of the century however the two forms merged on occasion and mockumentaries fictional works in a documentary format and docudramas reality based works in a fictional format became part of the film and television landscape The 18 essays here examine the relationships between narrative fiction films and documentary filmmaking focusing on how each influenced the other and how the two were merged in such diverse films and shows as Citizen Kane M A S H This Is Spinal Tap and Destination Moon Topics include the docudrama in early cinema the industrial film as faux documentary the fear evoked in 1950s science fiction films the selling of reality in mockumentaries and reality television and documentary forms The essays provide a foundation for significant rethinking of film history and criticism offering the first significant discussion of two emerging and increasingly important genres Instructors considering this book for use in a course may request an examination copy here
