H. Sam Jacobson,2009 Designed for Legal Research Writing courses this book introduces the reader to the study of law and legal analysis Part I examines why we have law and our responsibilities as lawyers Part II discusses the law school experience including how to study how to learn how to prepare for and take exams and how to manage stress Part III guides law students through the steps of legal analysis including the sources of law the analysis of enacted law and case law the synthesis of multiple sources of law and the application of law to facts Topics include tools to help students grasp the analytical skills needed to perform well in law school as well as many examples and opportunities to apply the information learned Part IV discusses how best to communicate that analysis in law office memos and client letters emphasizing good organization clear writing and accurate citation Part V reviews the research process including how to develop a research plan when to use online and print resources and where to find the materials needed Law as Civic Education Ariel Liberman,2025-06-27 If a civic education is the essential foundation for a functioning discursive democracy how should it be taught This book offers an innovative solution arguing that far from abandoning the often grand promise of civic education as a means of cultivating reasoning skills and democratic character we should embrace it and proposes a reimagined civic education based on teaching students in primary and secondary school law and legal reasoning Drawing on a range of theoretical disciplines law philosophy ethics sociology psychology and moral educational and child development theory this monograph justifies the benefits of law learning as a form of character and civic education and offers historical and comparative educational examples to show what is possible It demonstrates how legal teaching can be incorporated into a K 12 curriculum and argues that such training can be transformative guiding students to become citizens capable of meeting the demands of democracy citizens with stronger reasoning skills a motivation to self examine their values and beliefs and bring them into conversation with social values and an ability to effectively navigate political institutions and participate in public discourse This compelling and deeply original work will be of interest to scholars and educators in the fields of civic education character and virtue education legal studies and philosophy of education The Glass Half Full Suzanne C. Segerstrom,2012-03-01 Rose colored glasses may look silly but they re actually quite practical In The Glass Half Full psychologist Suzanne Segerstrom surveys the scientific data on optimism including her own award winning research to reveal that it s not what you believe about the future that matters but what you do about it While pessimists debate whether their goals are attainable optimists are out there trying to achieve them Without insisting that you learn to think positive The Glass Half Full teaches you practical ways to appropriate the habits and skills that optimists use to get what they want from life Segerstrom who reluctantly admits her research on the topic has transformed her into an optimist imparts the lesson with a mix of humor and intelligence that will convince even the most cynical readers that a brighter tomorrow might be just around the corner

What is Legal Education for? Rachel Dunn, Paul Maharg, Victoria Roper, 2022-09-30 How we interpret and understand the historical contexts of legal education has profoundly affected how we understand contemporary educational cultures and practices This book the result of a Modern Law Review seminar both celebrates and critiques the lasting impact of Peter Birks influential edited collection Pressing Problems in the Law Volume 2 What is the Law School for Published in 1996 his book addresses many critical issues that are hauntingly present in the 21st century amongst them the impact of globalisation technological disruption and the tension inherent in law schools as they seek to balance the competing interest of teaching research and administration Yet Birks collection misses key issues too The role of wellbeing of emotion or affect the relation of legal education to education the status of legal education in what since his volume have become the devolved jurisdictions of Northern Ireland Wales and Scotland these and others are absent from the research agenda of the book Today legal educators face new challenges We are still recovering from the effects of the Covid 19 pandemic on our universities In 1996 Birks was keen to stress the importance of comparative research within Europe Today legal researchers are dismayed at the possibility of losing valuable EU research funding when the UK leaves the EU and at the many other negative effects of Brexit on legal education The proposed Solicitors Qualifying Examination takes legal education regulation and professional learning into uncharted waters This book discusses these and related impacts on our legal educations As law schools approach an existential crossroads post Covid 19 it seems timely to revisit Birks fundamental question what are law schools for Continuing Legal Education Andreas Kellerhals, Michael Mayer, Janick Elsener, 2023-11-21 The education of lawyers does not end with the law degree Continuing legal education is of central importance for legal professionals and the whole of legal industry Both the education sector and the legal sector are undergoing profound change due to new business models and information technology Providers of continuing legal education and universities in particular are therefore confronted with various questions and challenges The Faculty of Law at the University of Zurich as the leading provider in Switzerland therefore held a conference on February 15 and 16 on the occasion of which these questions and challenges were discussed The conference featured speakers from universities law firms and associations as well as companies from Switzerland Germany the UK and the US The individual presentations provided insight into the state of continuing legal education in the respective countries and addressed topics such as legal innovation digitization the role of law schools and expectations from legal practice regarding continuing legal education
