Valle, Steen Halling, 2013-03-08 When I began to study psychology a half century ago it was defined as the study of behavior and experience By the time I completed my doctorate shortly after the end of World War II the last two words were fading rapidly In one of my first graduate classes a course in statistics the professor announced on the first day Whatever exists exists in some number We dutifully wrote that into our notes and did not pause to recognize that thereby all that makes life meaningful was being consigned to oblivion This bland restructuring perhaps more accurately destruction of the world was typical of its time 1940 The influence of a narrow scientific attitude was already spreading throughout the learned disciplines In the next two decades it would invade and tyrannize the social sciences education and even philosophy To be sure quantification is a powerful tool selectively employed but too often it has been made into an executioner's axe to deny actuality to all that does not yield to its procrustean demands      The Three Principles of the Path Gelek Rimpoche, 1994-09-21 The Three Principles of the Path was written by Je Tsongkhapa 1357-1419 one of the greatest lamas in the history of Tibet In fourteen stanzas the entire path to enlightenment is explained summarized in three main features i.e. the need for a determination to be free the need to develop altruism and insight in the true nature of reality Gelek Rimpoche's commentary is both practical and modern revealing the deeper layers of this poetic text together with tips on how to meditate on its meaning      Hospice and Palliative Care Stephen R.
