Why We Remember Textbook:

How We Remember Michael E. Hasselmo, 2013-08-16 A novel perspective on the biological mechanisms of episodic memory focusing on the encoding and retrieval of spatiotemporal trajectories Episodic memory proves essential for daily function allowing us to remember where we parked the car what time we walked the dog or what a friend said earlier In How We Remember Michael Hasselmo draws on recent developments in neuroscience to present a new model describing the brain mechanisms for encoding and remembering such events as spatiotemporal trajectories He reviews physiological breakthroughs on the regions implicated in episodic memory including the discovery of grid cells the cellular mechanisms of persistent spiking and resonant frequency and the topographic coding of space and time These discoveries inspire a theory for understanding the encoding and retrieval of episodic memory not just as discrete snapshots but as a dynamic replay of spatiotemporal trajectories allowing us to retrace our steps to recover a memory In the main text of the book he presents the model in narrative form accessible to scholars and advanced undergraduates in many fields In the appendix he presents the material in a more quantitative style providing mathematical descriptions appropriate for advanced undergraduates and graduate students in neuroscience or engineering

Public Opinion, 1898 International Perspectives on Teaching Rival Histories Henrik Åström Elmersjö, Anna Clark, Monika Vinterek, 2017-04-04 This book presents a survey of approaches to dealing with rival histories in the classroom arguing that approaching this problem requires great sensitivity to differing national educational and narrative contexts Contested narratives and disputed histories have long been an important issue in history teaching all over the world and have even been described as the history or culture wars. In this book authors from across the globe ponder the question what can teachers do and what are they doing to address conflicting narratives of the same past and puts an epistemological issue at the heart of the discussion what does it mean for the epistemology of history if it is possible to teach more than one narrative. Divided into three sections that deal with historical cultures, multicultural societies and multiperspectivity, the chapters of the book showcase that dealing with rival histories is very much dependent on context and that diverse teaching traditions and societal debates mean that teachers' abilities in engaging with the teaching of rival narratives are very different. The volume will be compelling reading for students and researchers in the fields of education, history, sociology and philosophy as well as practising teachers.
