newspapers and books for Australia's forgotten recipes. While his research has revealed some shockers not worth repeating, he has come across many more worthy dishes that are missing from the repertoire of modern day cooks. In The Lost Recipes, he sets about righting this culinary injustice by presenting a selection of bygone gems, savoury and sweet, dating from the Victorian era through to the 1950s, all of them rescued, researched, tested, and updated by Ross. Threaded throughout are handy tips: celery leaves dried in the oven and then ground with salt make a seasoning with endless uses, especially good on roasted potatoes; and insights into old-fashioned cooking techniques and ingredients deserving of revival. Among these once-forgotten recipes, you will find mushroom ketchup (1886), hot sauce (1876), olive anchovy salad (1921), devilled whitebait (1938), Sunday Chinese chicken (1949), brisket with macaroni (1915), golden billy bread (1925), pumpkin brownies (1939), cream lilies (1954), green tomato pineapple jam (1933). There isn't one recipe in this book that wasn't in essence once a lovely idea. It has been a privilege and joy to bring them back to life and in a workable condition. Ross Dobson

Food in Memory and Imagination Beth Forrest, Greg de St. Maurice, 2022-03-10

How do we engage with food through memory and imagination? Divided into seven sections, this expansive volume spans time and space to illustrate how, through food, people have engaged with the past, future, and their alternative presents. Bringing together a variety of perspectives on an emerging area of study, Food in Memory and Imagination investigates how food can be explored through both past experiences and future and present imaginings. In doing so, the book identifies that the previously drawn culinary dichotomy between memory and imagination is not clear-cut. Beth Forrest and Gregory de St. Maurice have brought together first-class contributions from Charles Spence, Lisa Heldke, Carole Counihan, and Fabio Parasecoli to look at how imagination and memory intertwine and sometimes diverge. With coverage of previously unexplored geographical regions including Japan and South Asia, as well as Italy, Iran, and the American Midwest, the contributors span disciplines including anthropology, sociology, history, psychology, and philosophy, making this reference volume a veritable feast for the contemporary food studies scholar.

Teatimes Helen Saberi, 2018-06-15

In Teatimes, food historian Helen Saberi takes us on a stimulating journey beyond the fine porcelain doilies, crumpets, and jam into the fascinating and diverse history of tea drinking. From elegant afternoon teas, hearty high teas, and cricket and tennis teas to funeral teas, cream teas, and many more, Saberi investigates the whole panoply of teatime rituals and ephemera, including tea gardens, tea dances, tea gowns, and tearooms. We are invited to spend time in the sophisticated salons of Paris and the cozy tearooms of the United States, to enjoy the teatime traditions of Canada, the United Kingdom, Australia, New Zealand, and South Africa, where housewives prided themselves on their well-filled tins to sit in on the tea parties of the Raj, and in Indian cafes to savor teatimes along the Silk Road, where the samovar and chaikhana reign supreme, and to delight in the tasty dim sum of China and the intricate tradition of cha kaiseki in Japan. Steeped in evocative illustrations and recipes from around the world, Teatimes shows how tea drinking has become a global obsession, from American iced tea and Taiwanese bubble tea to the now classic English afternoon tea.
