Whitmore, 2014-11-06 China's Encounters on the South and Southwest: Reforging the Fiery Frontier Over Two Millennia discusses the mountainous territory between lowland China and Southeast Asia what we term the Dong world and varied encounters by China with this world's many elements. The essays describe such encounters over the past two millennia and note various asymmetric relations that have resulted therefrom. Local populations indigenous chiefs state officials and rulers have all acted to shape this frontier especially after the Mongol incursions of the thirteenth century drastically shifted it. This process has moved from the alliances of the Dong world to the indirect rule of the Tusi native official age to the Qing and recent Gaitu Guiliu efforts at direct rule by the state placing regular officials in charge there The essays detail the complexities of this frontier through time space and personality particularly in those instances as today on land and sea when China elects to pursue an aggressive policy in this direction Contributors include Brantly Womack Kenneth MacLean Amy Holmes Tagchungdarpa Bradley Davis Jaymin Kim Alexander Ong Joseph Dennis Sun Laichen John K Whitmore Kathlene Baldanza Kenneth M Swope Michael Brose James A Anderson Liam Kelley and Catherine Churchman Gifted IQ Allen W. Kret, Bruno R. Bocanegra, 2017-05-02 Influential theories have argued that affective processing is fundamentally different from cognitive processing Others have suggested that theoretical boundaries between affective and cognitive processing are artificial and inherently problematic Over recent years different positions on these issues have fueled many empirical studies investigating the mechanisms underlying cognitive and affective processing Where and on what basis should we draw the line between cognition and emotion Are there fundamental distinctions to be made between the way emotion influences cognition and cognition influences emotion How does the reciprocal interaction between emotion and cognition lead to adaptive behavior This Research Topic explores the nature of the reciprocal interaction between emotion and cognition from a functional perspective Pathways Through Adolescence Lisa J. Crockett, Ann C. Crouter, 2014-03-05 Adolescent researchers are increasingly aware that they must examine development both across time and across context To do so however requires new conceptualizations and methodological approaches to the study of development including attention to the pathways young people choose in adolescence and follow into adulthood This volume assembles work by key researchers in the field who are struggling to understand how developmental trajectories are constructed and maintained throughout the adolescent period A complete understanding of developmental pathways requires the recognition that adolescents social contexts family school neighborhood and or peer group are important influences on the choices they make at this developmental period Researchers have traditionally studied contexts in isolation rather than examining the interrelationships among contexts and their implications for adolescent development The present volume seeks to address this gap in the literature with attention given not only to the interrelationships among contexts for white middle class youth but also to these issues for minority adolescents in neighborhoods that vary in terms of access to resources It concludes with an examination of researcher community collaboration as a strategy to move communities toward a greater awareness of adolescent development and the problems facing youth in their community and as a means to promote potential avenues for policy change and intervention
