

"Daring, precise, and linguistically acrobatic, this novel brings a history of America alive, from the war protests in the sixties to turn-of-the 21st-century art theft. A fearless portrayal of madness and its consequences. . . . This is a new writer to savor, reminiscent of Nicole Krauss, Michael Chabon and Andy Sean Greer."

The Suicide of Claire Bishop Carmiel Banasky, 2015 In 1959 Claire Bishop sits for a portrait only to discover that what the artist has actually depicted is her suicide Haunted by the painting Claire starts to question whether it is a premonition In 2004 a schizophrenic young man is obsessed with a painting he encounters in a gallery a mysterious image of a woman s suicide Convinced the painting is a message to him he becomes submerged in an elaborate delusion When the two characters finally meet in the present the young man s delusion is shattered only to be replaced by a reality even more strange

(Re)writing and Remembering James Dalrymple, Jonathan Fruoco, Virginia Sherman, 2016-02-08 Recounting past events is intrinsic to the storytelling function as most fiction assumes the past tense as the natural means of narrating a story Few narratives draw attention to this process yet others make the act of remembering a primary part of the narrative situation Ranging in its focus from poetry to novels autobiographical memoirs and biopics from the ostensibly fictional to the implicitly real this volume discusses the extent to which such fictional acts of remembering are also acts of rewriting the past to suit the needs of the present How seamlessly does experience yield to the ordering strictures of narrative and what is at stake in the process What must be omitted or stylised and to what ideological end In making an artefact of the past what role does artifice play and what does this process also tell us about history making
