PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE

1. Senior Software Engineer in R-D Software working at Lexmark

Forms card is a firmware flash card that is attached to Lexmark devices and helps store various templates and intelligently merges data that is sent to it with the appropriate stored template. The requirement was to cut down manual testing time and hence I developed a test automation tool that communicates with a printer firmware via SNMP/UDP protocols and retrieves the created checkouts that correspond to a merged file and uses that for successive comparisons. It also makes sure no paper is printed physically while the test runs. Thus saving paper and making test runs quicker. The results are then published to a dashboard of the organization.

This tool was entirely designed and developed by myself in 3 months using Java, Java Mail API and Threads. We achieved a 80% efficiency improvement by managing to get almost the entire regression tests automated.
