the engines of an innovation based economy where research and new ideas are the core input of production Urbanisation is becoming synonymous of economic growth People flock into cities both in the developed and developing world since here is where wealth is where high quality services are available and life standards are comparatively higher with respect to other places However one has to acknowledge that growth also produces undesired negative effects In fact cities are net importers They need to acquire consumption intermediate goods export production and get rid of waste In other words the existence of a city relies on a transportation system providing the necessary services for its functioning The typical urban transportation system heavily depends on passenger and freight movements by road While this dependency is in some cases less relevant for passenger transport most of freight moved in out within and through a city relies on motorized road transportation Trucks and vans are responsible for congestion polluting emissions accidents noise visual intrusion and stench All these negative effects are concentrated where many citizens live and consequently produce relevant economic e g time lost environmental e g air quality and social e g segregation impacts Cities to be attractive sustainable and thriving need an efficient freight transportation system Fast changing consumption patterns with the rise of e commerce and home deliveries also point out to another dimension of cities their need to adapt quickly to economic trends

Transplanting Care Laura L. Heinemann,2016-07-12 The sudden call the race to the hospital the high stakes operation the drama of transplant surgery is well known But what happens before and after the surgery In Transplanting Care Laura L Heinemann examines the daily lives of midwestern organ transplant patients and those who care for them from pretransplant preparations through to the long posttransplant recovery Heinemann points out that as efforts to control healthcare costs gain urgency and as new surgical techniques drug therapies and home medical equipment advance most of the transplant process now takes place at home among kin Indeed the transplant system effectively depends on unpaid care labor typically provided by spouses parents siblings and others Drawing on scores of interviews with patients relatives and healthcare professionals Heinemann follows a variety of patients and loved ones as they undertake this uncertain and strenuous transplant journey She also shows how these home based caregiving efforts take place within the larger economic and political context of a paucity of resources for patients and caregivers who ultimately must surmount numerous obstacles The author concludes that the many snags encountered by transplant patients and loved ones make a clear case for more comprehensive health and social policy that treats care as a necessarily shared public responsibility An illuminating look at the long transplant journey Transplanting Care also offers broader insight into how we handle infirmity in America and how we might do a better job of doing so
