

Great note-making takes practice. You have to find a method that works for you, and that may change depending on the class that you're in (for example, a science class versus a humanities class). Here are 5 methods that are proven to be successful. Read over each one and decide if there's one that might work for you.

These styles are described in the format you would use to take notes in class. You might find that a comfortable method is a combination of 2 or more of the ones listed here, and that's fine.

THE CORNELL METHOD

Today's Date _____

Page # _____

Layout of the page and where to write

First physically draw a line vertically down your paper, leaving 2-3 inches on the left and 8 inches on the right.

This allows you to take notes on the right-hand side of the page (leaving space on the left to summarize the main point with a cue word or phrase).

Organization of concepts

When the instructor moves to a new topic, skip a line.

It is also a great idea to use some organizational structure to your notes page.

- Use bullets!
- Use an indented system — kind of like outlining.
- Use cue words for important words.

Filling in blanks

If you aren't able to completely write down an idea before the instructor moves on to a new topic, fill in later notes.

Reviewing and studying

After class, test your knowledge of course material by covering up the right side of the page, reading the cue words, and trying to remember as much information as possible. Then check to see if you remembered correctly. Also write page numbers, date, and class.

Advantages

This is a simple and efficient way of reviewing and reviewing notes — it's easy for pulling out major concepts and ideas. It's simple and efficient. It saves time and effort because you "do it right in the first place."
