

The Statistics of Inheritance

How can statistics help predict the traits of offspring?

Why?

The randomization of alleles from the parents' genetic material is essential to the survival and evolution of a species. If the combinations of alleles that make up the genetic material in a zygote are truly random, the laws of statistics can be used to predict what traits the offspring will have. This activity starts with a review of Punnett squares, which is one way to make predictions about simple allele combinations. Statistics will then be used to make mathematical predictions about the genotypes of offspring.

- Consider the beetle species in Model 1.
 - How many phenotypes for exoskeleton color are exhibited in the population? What are they?
 - How many genotypes for exoskeleton color are exhibited in the population? What are they?
- According to Model 1, which allele, B or b, is the dominant exoskeleton color allele? Justify your answer with specific evidence from Model 1.
- The Punnett squares in Model 1 show the possible outcomes for an offspring resulting from the mating of two beetles.
 - Which Punnett square shows a cross between two homozygous beetles?
 - Which Punnett square shows a cross between a heterozygous beetle and a homozygous recessive beetle?
- Briefly describe how the genotypes inside of the Punnett squares representing the possible outcomes for an offspring are determined.
- Complete the Punnett square for cross D in Model 1. Include drawings to show the phenotypes possible for the offspring that would result.
- Refer to Model 1.
 - In which of the crosses is there a 100% chance that the beetle offspring will have a black exoskeleton?
 - In which of the crosses is the probability 0.75 that the beetle offspring will have a black exoskeleton?
- For cross D in Model 1, what is the probability that the beetle offspring will have a Bb genotype? Show a mathematical calculation to support your answer.

The Inheritance of Ability Edgar Schuster, 2018-02-07 Excerpt from The Inheritance of Ability Being a Statistical Study of the Oxford Class Lists and of the School Lists of Harrow and Charterhouse AT the time Of the first publication of Mr Calton s Hereditary Genius in 1869 the belief in the hereditary nature of inborn natural ability was held by very few but SO great has been the influence of that and other works that at the present time it would be almost impossible to find an educated person to dispute it and the inheritance of psychical characters ranks with motor cars and the morphia habit among the ingredients in the composition of the contemporary novel With the diffusion Of an idea it becomes progressively more vague and indefinite so that an attempt to give it crispness of outline becomes all the more desirable and for this purpose one must substitute for a description that is merely qualitative one that is also quantitative and having recognized the pressure and direction of a force one must endeavour to measure it Such a description Of the inheritance of the mental and moral qualities has been given by Professor Pearson in his Huxley Lecture before the Anthropological Institute and it has been our endeavour to confirm and supplement his results with others Obtained from different material treated at the outset in a fundamentally different way The essential difference between his results and ours is that the former are based on the estimates of the school teachers of the ability of pairs of brothers or Sisters or brothers and Sisters while we have used the results of the examinations for the ba Degree at Oxford the position in the school of boys in the school at definite times in their life or in their school career This has enabled us with regard to the Oxford material to measure the average resemblance between father and son as well as that between brother and brother and we Shall endeavour to Show that after certain allowances have been made our results are substantially in agreement not only with those of Professor Pearson which are referred to above but also with other work on more easily measurable characters About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
