Native American Catholic Studies Reader David J. Endres,2022-08-12 Before there was an immigrant American Church there was a Native American Church The Native American Catholic Studies Reader offers an introduction to the story of how Native American Catholicism has developed over the centuries beginning with the age of the missions and leading to inculturated indigenous forms of religious expression. Though the Native Christian relationship could be marked by tension, coercion and even violence, the Christian faith took root among Native Americans and for those who accepted it and bequeathed it to future generations it became not an imposition but a way of expressing Native identity. From the perspective of historians and theologians, the Native American Catholic Studies Reader offers a curated collection of essays divided into three sections: education and evangelization, tradition and transition, and Native American lives. Contributors include scholars currently working in the field: Mark Clatterbuck, Damian Costello, Conor J. Donnan, Ross Enochs, Allan Greer, Mark G. Thiel, and Christopher Vecsey, as well as selections from a past generation: Gerald McKevitt SJ and Carl F. Starkloff SJ. These contributions explore the interaction of missionaries and tribal leaders, the relationship of traditional Native cosmology and religiosity to Christianity, and the role of geography and tribal consciousness in accepting and maintaining indigenous and religious identities. These readings highlight the state of the emergent field of Native Catholic studies and suggest further avenues for research and publication. For scholars, teachers, and students, the Native American Catholic Studies Reader explores how the faith of the American Church's eldest members became a means of expressing and celebrating language, family, and tribe.

A Spirit of Dialogue Christopher N. Okonkwo, 2008. A groundbreaking study, A Spirit of Dialogue examines through extensive interdisciplinary research, theory, and close reading the intricate reconstructions, extensions, and resonances of the West African myth of spirit children, the Born to Die, in contemporary African American neo-slave narratives. Arguing that the myth called Ogba je in Igbo language and b k in Yoruba has had over thirty years of uncharted presence in African American literature, Okonkwo advances a compelling case absent in extant scholarship. He traces Ogba je, the Born to Die's appearance in African American texts to a convergence of factors. They include, but are not limited to, the impact of Chinua Achebe's Things Fall Apart, the 1960s emergence of the contemporary neo-slave narrative, the 1960s and 1970s Black Consciousness, Black Power movement, and the cultural agenda, gendered politics, and centripetal philosophy of the Black Arts movement's nationalist aesthetic. African American identity questions of the post-civil rights and the multicultural eras and the thematic shifts, as well as the African diaspora orientation of African American fiction of the post-nationalist aesthetic period, A Spirit of Dialogue focuses on the sometimes neglected and understudied works of four canonical African American writers: Octavia E. Butler's Wild Seed and Mind of My Mind, Tananarive Due's The Between, John Edgar Wideman's The Cattle Killing, and Toni Morrison's Sula and Beloved. Okonkwo demonstrates persuasively how the mythic spirit child informs the content and form of these novels, offering Butler, Due, Wideman, and Morrison a non-occidental code by which to engage collectively with the various issues integral to the history and experience of African descended people. The paradigm functions then as the nexus of a life-affirmative dialogue among the six novels, as well as between them and other works of African religious and literary imagination, particularly Things Fall Apart and Ben Okri's The Famished Road.
