Nominative accusative and ergative are two common alignment types found across languages In the former type the subject of an intransitive verb and the subject of a transitive verb are expressed the same way and differently from the object of a transitive In ergative languages the subject of an intransitive and the object of a transitive appear in the same form the absolutive and the transitive subject has a special ergative form Ergative languages often follow very different patterns thus evading a uniform description and analysis A simple explanation for that has to do with the idea that ergative languages much as their nominative accusative counterparts do not form a uniform class In this book Maria Polinsky argues that ergative languages instantiate two main types the one where the ergative subject is a prepositional phrase PP ergatives and the one with a noun phrase ergative Each type is internally consistent and is characterized by a set of well defined properties
The book begins with an analysis of syntactic ergativity which as Polinsky argues is a manifestation of the PP ergative type Polinsky discusses diagnostic properties that define PPs in general and then goes to show that a subset of ergative expressions fit the profile of PPs Several alternative analyses have been proposed to account for syntactic ergativity the book presents and outlines these analyses and offers further considerations in support of the PP ergativity approach The book then discusses the second type DP ergative languages and traces the diachronic connection between the two types The book includes two chapters illustrating paradigm PP ergative and DP ergative languages Tongan and Tsez The data used in these descriptions come from Polinsky s original fieldwork hence presenting new empirical facts from both languages Chemical
