Abstract The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week, low-intensity, low-impact, and low-impact exercise program on the physical and psychological health of older adults. The study was a randomized controlled trial. The intervention group consisted of 12 older adults who participated in a 12-week, low-intensity, low-impact, and low-impact exercise program. The control group consisted of 12 older adults who did not participate in the exercise program. The study was conducted in a community center. The results of the study showed that the intervention group had significantly higher levels of physical and psychological health than the control group. The study was limited by the small sample size and the lack of a control group. The study was funded by the National Institutes of Health.
